Section I: A Word from the Organizers

Chapter 1 - Numbers can restrict results? Qualitative research methods as information and knowledge management support in supply chain and logistics sectors
George Leal Jamil – InescTec Porto.

Chapter 2 – Information Technology and Communication Management in Supply Chain Management – SCM
Cláudio R.M. Pessoa, Marco E. Marques – Engineering School of Fumec University (FEA-Fumec)

Chapter 3 – Risk and visibility in supply chains: an information management perspective
Dario Messina, Cláudio Santos, António Lucas Soares, Ana Cristina Barros - INESC TEC

Section II: Theoretical Studies

Chapter 4 – Strategic Information Management - Proposal of Business Project Model
Vitor H. Lazzareschi, Mônica S. Brito – Fundação Dom Cabral

Chapter 5 - Identification of Potential Clients, Providers and Competitors in Supply Chain Networks
Giulia Bruno - Politecnico di Torino, Italy

Chapter 6 – Advocating information system and information sharing in global supply chain
Kijpokin Kasemsap – Suan Sunandha Rajabhat University – Bangkok - Thailand

Chapter 7 – Importance of Stakeholders Identification in Information Distribution Chain Management for Public Value Detection in Public Initiatives
Pedro Fernandes de Anunciação, Bruno Garcia, Gleyson Fonseca - Instituto Politécnico de Setúbal – Setúbal - Portugal

Chapter 8 – Supply-Side: Mapping high capacity suppliers of goods and services
Brenner Lopes, Luander Falcão - Nous SenseMaking, Brazil; Thiago Canellas - Cortex Intelligence, Brazil.

Chapter 9 – Information Management Applied to the Development of the Management Process and Improving Energy Efficiency in Transport
Sostenes Bernardes - FTL,Brazil; Poliana Leite - SET, Brazil; Greice Sehren Pesenti - Forquilhaínha, Brazil; Edmilson Aparecido Viana - Gidion, Brazil; Vinicius Ladeira, Cynthia Castro, Myriam Caetano - CNT, Brazil; Paulo Renato de Sousa - Fundação Dom Cabral, Brazil

Chapter 10 – The Impact of ICT on Supply Chain Agility and Human Performance
Valeria Martínez Loya, Jorge Luis García Alcaraz, Deisy Guadalupe Marquez Gayosso - Autonomous University of Ciudad Juárez, Mexico; José Roberto Díaz Reza - University of La Rioja, Spain

Chapter 11 - Information and knowledge management perspective contributions for Fashion studies: observing logistics and supply chain management processes
George Leal Jamil – InescTec Porto.; Cecília Carvalho Jamil – Stockholm University.
Section III: Applied Case Studies

Chapter 12 – Decision support system design requirements, information management and urban logistics efficiency: Case study of Bogotá, Colombia
Jairo Enrique Parra Herrera, Laura Vanessa Palacios Arguello, Jesus Gonzalez-Feliu, France Wilson Adarme Jaimes – Institut Henry Faiol, St. Etienne, France.

Chapter 13 – The SCM, CRM Information System & KM, An integrating theoretical view: The Case of Sales Force Automation
Kaouther Jridi, Mr. Abdelfattah Triki - The High Institute of Management of Tunis, University of Tunis, Tunisia; Mrs. Dhouha Jaziri-Bouagina - FSEG Sousse, University of Sousse, Tunisia.

Chapter 14 – Composition of the Financial Logistic Costs of the IT Organizations Linked to the Financial Market: Financial Indicators of the Software Development Project
Edilaine Rodrigues Soares – Cotemig School, Brazil; Fernando Hadad Zaidan – Ietec-MG, Brazil.

Chapter 15 – Competitive Intelligence: a proposal for value creation through information and knowledge. The Limeira Gross Domestic Product Sector – Brazil
Pedro Fernandes Anunciação, António Carlos Zambon, Fernanda de Jesus Andrade, Carla S. Sanches de Sousa – Instituto Politécnico de Setúbal, Portugal.

Chapter 16 – Benefits of the Transics fleet management system.
Petre Iltchev, Anna Palczewska, Klaudia Pilichowska, Remigiusz Kozlowski and Michal Marczak – Medical University of Lodz, Poland.

Chapter 17 – Analysis of the possibility to implement the Transics system in a selected company.
Petre Iltchev, Anna Palczewska, Klaudia Pilichowska, Remigiusz Kozlowski and Michal Marczak – Medical University of Lodz, Poland.

Chapter 18 – «Port Single Window» and «Logistics Single Window». Two competitiveness proposals in the port value chain
José Carlos Dias Simão, Pedro Fernandes de Anunciação - Instituto Politécnico de Setúbal – Setúbal - Portugal

Chapter 19 – Information management and enterprise resource planning: an analysis of the medical products distribution chain.

Chapter 20 – Information Systems Management in the Supply Chain in an Official Pharmaceutical Laboratory
Jorge Lima de Magalhães, Arlene Moreira – Fundação Osvaldo Cruz, Brazil.

Chapter 21 – Information systems for logistics and distribution management.
José Poças Rascão – Instituto Politécnico de Setúbal, Portugal.

Chapter 22 – Information management for network transformation in industrial enterprises associations: The case of the internationalization process
Eric Costa, António Lucas Soares, Jorge Pinho de Sousa - INESC TEC and FEUP, Portugal; George Leal Jamil – InescTec Porto.

Chapter 23 – A Telecommunications Approach in Systems for Effective Logistics and Supply Chains
Cláudio Roberto Magalhães Pessoa - FUMEC University, Brazil; Manuel da Rocha Fiúza Branco Júnior - FUMEC University, Brazil.

Chapter 24 – The importance and appreciation of the information management for effective logistics and supply chain in transport sector.
Pedro Fernandes da Anunciação, Mário Lobo, Oscar Pereira, Gracieth Mateus - Escola Superior de Ciências Empresariais do Instituto Politécnico de Setúbal, Portugal

Chapter 25 – Information management systems in the supply chain
Maria José Sousa, Rui Cruz, Ivo Dias – Universidade Europeia, Portugal; Carla Caracol – Universidade de Lisboa.