The Social and Cognitive Impacts of e-Commerce on Modern Organizations

Table of Contents

Preface................................................................................................................................................. vi

Chapter I
Online Shopping for Positive and Negative Reinforcement Products ................................................................. 1
Patricia Sorce, Rochester Institute of Technology, USA
Victor Perotti, Rochester Institute of Technology, USA
Stanley Widrick, Rochester Institute of Technology, USA

Chapter II
Online Shopping Experience: A Conceptualization and Preliminary Results ............................................................ 15
Yi Maggie Guo, Texas A&M University, USA

Chapter III
An Expanded E-Commerce Process Model Serving E-Commerce Entrepreneurs ...................................................... 45
David Paper, Utah State University, USA
Eric Pedersen, Utah State University, USA
Chapter IV
Internet Shopping Model and Customer Perceptions: A Study of UK Supermarkets .............................................................. 73
Xianzhong Mark Xu, University of Portsmouth, United Kingdom
Martyn Roberts, University of Portsmouth, United Kingdom

Chapter V
A Psychographic Approach to Segmenting the Electronic Shopper ................................................................. 90
Leo R. Vijayasarathy, Colorado State University, USA

Chapter VI
A Negotiation Agent System in E-Commerce .............................. 119
Chuan-Feng Chiu, Tamkang University, Taiwan
Timothy K. Shih, Tamkang University, Taiwan

Chapter VII
Business Interactions in a Virtual Organisation: Visualising Inter-Organisational Systems Complexity ...................... 136
Karin Axelsson, Linkoping University, Sweden

Chapter VIII
Issues and Perceptions of Unsolicited Commercial Electronic Mail .......................................................... 165
Jack T. Marchewka, Northern Illinois University, USA
Chang Liu, Northern Illinois University, USA
Charles G. Petersen, Northern Illinois University, USA

Chapter IX
Impact of E-Learning during SARS Outbreak in Hong Kong ...... 185
Eric Wong, The Hong Kong Polytechnic University, Hong Kong

Chapter X
Building Competitive Advantage Through E-CRM Analytics and Data Integration ................................... 204
Hamid R. Nemati, University of North Carolina, USA
Christopher D. Barko, University of North Carolina, USA
Ashfaaq Moosa, University of North Carolina, USA
Chapter XI
E-Government Scottish Style: Recent Developments and Some Emerging Issues .................................................................227
Feng Li, University of Newcastle upon Tyne, United Kingdom

Chapter XII
The Impact of the Role of the Government of Egypt on Electronic Commerce Development and Growth.................................253
Sherif Kamel, American University in Cairo, Egypt
Ahmed Ghoneim, Cairo University, Egypt
Sherine Ghoneim, Cairo University, Egypt

Chapter XIII
Linking Technological Compatibility and Operational Capacity Constraints to Communication Technology Adoption....................277
Elliot Bendoly, Emory University, USA
Fred Kaefer, Loyola University Chicago, USA

Chapter XIV
Pushing Elusive Alliances into the Light - Discovering the Value of Informal Networks on the Internet .......................................292
Rian van der Merwe, Curtin University of Technology, Australia
Leyland Pitt, Curtin University of Technology, Australia

Chapter XV
Technology Trust in Internet-Based Interorganizational Electronic Commerce.................................................................311
Pauline Ratnasingam, Central Missouri State University, USA
Paul Pavlou, University of Southern California, USA

About the Authors..................................................................................................................................................338

Index..................................................................................................................................................................348