Table of Contents

Preface .................................................................................................................................................... xvi
Acknowledgment ................................................................................................................................... xxii
Introduction ........................................................................................................................................... xxiii

Section 1
Conceptual Approaches to Integrated eCare

Chapter 1
The Core Vision of Person-Centred Care in a Modern Information-Based Society ....................... 1
  Michael Rigby, Keele University, UK & Nordic School of Public Health, Sweden & Dublin
  City University, Ireland

Chapter 2
Do All Roads Lead to Rome? Models for Integrated e-Care Services in Europe.............................. 22
  Lutz Kubitschke, empirica, Germany
  Ingo Meyer, empirica, Germany
  Sonja Müller, empirica, Germany

Chapter 3
Implementing and Scaling up Integrated Care through Collaboration .............................................. 41
  George Crooks, NHS 24, UK
  Donna Henderson, NHS 24, UK

Section 2
Technologies for Integrated eCare

Chapter 4
Understanding Integrated Care: The Role of Information and Communication Technology .......... 63
  Nick Goodwin, International Foundation for Integrated Care, The Netherlands
  Albert Alonso, Innovation Directorate of Hospital Clinic Barcelona, Spain
Chapter 5
Technology for Integrated eCare

Wil Rijnen, Smart Homes, The Netherlands
Ilse Bierhoff, Smart Homes, The Netherlands
Rafael Llarena Gómez, Tunstall, Spain
Eleftheria Vellidou, Vidavo S.A., Greece
Pantelis Angelidis, Vidavo S.A., Greece

Chapter 6
Informatics and Socio-Technical Challenges when Designing Solutions for Integrated eCare

Sabine Koch, Karolinska Institutet, Sweden
Maria Hägglund, Karolinska Institutet, Sweden
Isabella Scandurra, Uppsala University, Sweden

Section 3
Evaluating Integrated eCare Services

Chapter 7
Socio-Economic Impact Assessment and Business Models for Integrated eCare

Reinhard Hammerschmidt, empirica, Germany
Ingo Meyer, empirica, Germany

Chapter 8
Evaluating Integrated eCare: Discussions and Guidance of a Diverse Field

Anne-Kirstine Dyrvig, Center for Innovative Medical Technologies, Denmark

Section 4
Integrated eCare Services in Practice

Chapter 9
Telemedically Augmented Palliative Care: Empowerment for Patients with Advanced Cancer and their Family Caregivers

Romina Nemecek, Medical University of Vienna, Austria
Patrick Huber, Medical University of Vienna, Austria
Sophie Schur, Medical University of Vienna, Austria
Eva Masel, Medical University of Vienna, Austria
Stefanie Porkert, Medical University of Vienna, Austria
Barbara Hoffer, Medical University of Vienna, Austria
Herbert Watzke, Medical University of Vienna, Austria
Christoph Zielinski, Medical University of Vienna, Austria
Michael Binder, Medical University of Vienna, Austria

Chapter 10
The Development of BelRAI, a Web Application for Sharing Assessment Data on Frail Older
Chapter 11
Making Integrated eCare a Reality in the UK: Past Failures, Current Successes, and Future Challenges
Mark Gretton, University of Hull, UK

Chapter 12
Integrating Social and Health Services in Greece: Implementation of Three Pilot CIP-PSP-ICT Programs (ISISEMD, INDEPENDENT, RENEWING HEALTH)
George E. Dafoulas, Independent Researcher, Greece
Christina N. Karaberi, Independent Researcher, Greece
Lamprini Ch. Oikonomou, Independent Researcher, Greece
Kalliopi P. Liatou, Independent Researcher, Greece

Chapter 13
From Agreement to Realization: Six Years of Investment in Integrated eCare in Kinzigtal
Birgit Reime, Gesundes Kinzigtal GmbH, Germany
Udo Kardel, Gesundes Kinzigtal GmbH, Germany
Christian Melle, Gesundes Kinzigtal GmbH, Germany
Monika Roth, Gesundes Kinzigtal GmbH, Germany
Marcus Auel, Gesundes Kinzigtal GmbH, Germany
Helmut Hildebrandt, Gesundes Kinzigtal GmbH, Germany

Chapter 14
The eCare Network in Bologna: No Longer Home Alone
Carla Fiori, CUP 2000 S.p.A., Italy

Chapter 15
Integrated eCare in Dementia: The Irish Experience in the INDEPENDENT Project
Sarah Delaney, Work Research Centre, Ireland

Compilation of References

About the Contributors

Index