A book such as this takes over a year to produce, with dozens of individual and group efforts making it all possible. First, this book would have never gotten started without the invitation from Monica Speca, of IGI Global, followed up by ongoing assistance and support from Allyson Gard and Allison McGinniss. Moreover, I’m sure there are countless people working behind the scenes at IGI Global who have helped to transfer this work from mere words to a published volume.

Next, I would like to thank my major professor, Dr. Greg Jones, of the University of North Texas. Long after my dissertation was defended, he has continued to guide and support my endeavors in all things scholarly. His contribution of the Foreword to this book is but one instance where my efforts have been facilitated by his thoughtful contributions and gracious support.

I would also like to thank the many new colleagues that I have met as a result of their willingness to author the chapters of this book. Over 200 people were contacted at the beginning of this project; fewer than one-tenth of those were selected to serve as authors. I hope that this process has been as rewarding to them as it has been for me. I also hope that the exposure from this book provides them with greater motivation and opportunities to continue and expand their work.

I would like to offer my thanks to the members of the Editorial Advisory Board and to the chapter reviewers. These friends and colleagues shouldered the bulk of the editorial efforts that made this book possible. Reading through numerous proposals and multiple drafts of book chapters with critical and editorial eyes, these reviewers helped authors to polish, hone, format, and focus their works so that they could appear in the book you now hold. An extra tip of the hat goes to those authors who, having successfully completed the latest draft of their chapter, went on to review the works of others. They lightened the load for all of us.

Finally, I would like to express my gratitude to my wife, Linda Krouse-Wright, for allowing me to live like a hermit and to ignore a long list of household duties. Having spent numerous hours reading, editing, thinking, and praying about this book, I know that many opportunities for family interaction fell by the wayside. I truly appreciate her patience and understanding.
