Acknowledgment

This book would not have been possible without the collaboration and critical gaze of the editorial board who generously gave of their time and expertise in assisting me in peer reviewing the chapter proposals and full chapters.

I wish to acknowledge the effort and expertise of the individual authors who also peer reviewed one another’s work in a double-blind process in the final peer review. I thank you all for joining me on this search for evidence.

On a more personal note, I would like to thank my colleague and friend of the past eight years, Justin Cargill, for his tireless efforts in providing support to the authors of this book. I also wish to thank my mother for supporting me during the highs and lows of this project and my sister, Robyn Pack, Librarian, National Library of New Zealand, for peer review on early chapter drafts. From such faithful and loyal support, all things seem possible.

Most importantly, I would like to thank Margaret Pack for inviting me to join her as co-editor. It is, of course, impossible to embark on a project of this nature without incurring significant indebtedness! I must certainly thank Allison McGinniss at IGI Global for her guidance and advice throughout the process. I would also like to thank my librarian colleague, Rohini Biradavolu, who as a trained English teacher was readily available to discuss thorny grammatical issues. I also wish to acknowledge my colleagues, Tony Quinn and Pete Nichols, who helpfully provided second opinions over various matters, Simon Chamberlain for his advice in interpreting legal references, and Dr. Deborah Laurs. I would like to thank Medwenna Buckland, Librarian at Australian Catholic University, for double checking the reference lists. She was worth her weight in gold. I also wish to recognise Jeff Hume-Pratuch, Editorial Supervisor, APA Journals, and Charles Rhoades, Manuscript Editor, APA Journals, who in particular answered far more questions than anyone should ever be reasonably expected to address especially in regard to interpreting The Bluebook for citation of legal and United Nations materials. In addition, I would like to acknowledge my mother’s patience; her frequent question, “When will it end?” was met with the equally frequent but, no doubt, infuriating refrain, “When it is finished.” Finally, of course, I would like to thank the contributors to this book who willingly cooperated as the project unfolded. It’s been a pleasure.
