Acknowledgment

We would also like to acknowledge the valuable contribution of all the reviewers for improving the quality of this book and assisting in creating coherent content. Most of the authors also served as reviewers – we highly appreciate their dual task, and in some cases they were generous to accommodate more than their share in reviews.

Due to Ruth Wolf’s vast experience in teaching ethics in the academia, she can easily appreciate the many efforts required by the authors. Wolf would like to thank her colleagues at the Social Department of Bar Ilan University, who pitched in to assist in reviewing and assisting the various chapters. Ruth Wolf would also like to thank Dr. Theodora Issa, the co-editor of this book, for her correspondences with the authors.

Wolf would also like to dedicate special thanks to her 3 children – Orit, Ishay, and Ethan, who were willing to listen, give advice, showed interest and enthusiasm. Wolf also thanks her husband Joseph, for his support, wise view, and clear advice.

Theodora Issa would like first to thank God the almighty for granting her the necessary strength and patience throughout this project. Issa wishes to express thanks to the authors, the reviewers, and the editorial board members. Issa also wishes to acknowledge the help rendered by all her family members, specifically her parents, V. Rev. Fr. Boutros Touma Issa, Bathqyomo Marine, for their patience and support throughout the project, and special thanks to her sister Dr. Tomayess Issa for her introduction to IGI Global. Issa also thanks her brothers Dr Touma, Theodore Issa, FCPA, and her sister Tamara. Issa would also like to extend special thanks to Professor Samir Chatterjee and Associate Professor Howard Harris for their support and valuable advice throughout the project. Issa also thanks Curtin University.

Last but not least, both editors would like to offer a warm thank you to Ms. Jan Travers and Ms. Erin O’Dea for their ongoing support and assistance throughout this project.
