Writing a book on consumer experiences has been different than any other book on marketing topics. It involved enormous time and efforts to steer discussions with consumers, researchers, and company executives. At the onset, we express our deep gratitude to Dr. María de Lourdes Dieck Assad, Dean of EGADE Business School at Tecnológico de Monterrey, for encouraging us throughout in taking up quality research contributions and publication projects. We were educated significantly from the research contributions of Martin Reimann, María Eugenia Pérez, Claudia Quintanilla, Edgardo Ayala, Israel Martínez, and Sebastian Wentrup that inspired us in writing some chapters of this book.

We candidly acknowledge David Flores and Arati Rajagopal for their insights and efforts in reviewing the manuscript, providing support in copy editing, and enriching the content of each chapter. We convey our sincere thanks Stefano Manzur and Georgina Aguirre for their support in copy editing the manuscript. We are thankful also to our students and colleagues who have been dynamic in discussions time and again on the issues of concern.

We express our appreciation and sincere thanks to Jan Travers of IGI Global for her cooperation and patience during the process of developing this manuscript and managing the schedule of publication of this book.
