Acknowledgment

I would be culpable if I did not acknowledge the contributions of my fellow academicians and others around the world who made this volume possible.

Firstly, I must acknowledge the team at IGI Global for approving the book proposal and guiding me throughout all stages of this project through their friendly and helpful suggestions. They have been cooperative and their earnest efforts were always commendable. Secondly, I should be grateful to my research guides Professor Soumyen Sikdar of Indian Institute of Management, Calcutta, India and Professor Sarmila Banerjee of Calcutta University, India for encouraging me to undergo such a project and circulating the call for papers to our fellow academics in the field. Thirdly, I must thank Dr. Amaresh Das at the Southern University at New Orleans, USA, Dr. Soumyananda Dinda, Dr. Maniklal Adhikary and Dr. Arindam Laha of The University of Burdwan, India, Dr. Kamal Ray of Katwa College, India and Dr. Chiranjib Neogi of Indian Statistical Institute, Calcutta, India for their efforts in helping to review and edit the submitted manuscripts of the book, in addition to their added encouragements to me. Fourthly, I should acknowledge the efforts of the editorial advisory board members along with the guest editors for revising the chapters and providing me with suggestions despite their busy academic schedules. Fifthly, I should praise all the contributing authors for their valuable chapter contributions and showing their patience for such a long duration project coming into reality; I greatly appreciate the value they’ve provided to this field of research through their contributions to this edited volume.

Last, but not the least, I am truly grateful to my parents, wife, daughter, and other family members for their continuous encouragement to me in carrying out this project, as well as their sacrifice and understanding as book work encroached on our family life.
