Ke a leboga!

To all who contributed!

What I appreciate and always will remember is how much each of you has contributed to the success of this book. In particular, I would like to thank authors who have unselfishly shared case studies from their countries for the world to learn from. It has been my pleasure journeying and learning with you in the process of writing this book. It’s a job well done!

My deepest appreciation also goes to those who expended their resources in reviewing and editing the chapters in this book. Thank you mightily.

Let me not forget to acknowledge IGI Global staff whose guidance and encouragement gave me enough motivation to see this book through to its publication. Thank you IGI Global for affording me this exceptional opportunity.

There has been significant contributions from others that I have not acknowledged in writing: Friends who assisted in variety of ways; and family members who understood that 50/50 is an impossible equation at times like these. I highly appreciate each and everyone’s contribution.

Ke a leboga!