Table of Contents

Foreword .......................................................................................................................... xv

Preface .................................................................................................................................. xvii

Section 1
Diagnostic Criteria in the Context of DSM-5

Chapter 1
Internet Gaming Disorder: A Deeper Look into Addiction vs. High Engagement...................... 1
Mario Lehenbauer-Baum, Sigmund Freud Private University, Austria
Martina Fohringer, University of Vienna, Austria

Chapter 2
New Concepts, Old Known Issues: The DSM-5 and Internet Gaming Disorder and its Assessment.............................................................................................................................. 16
Halley M Pontes, Nottingham Trent University, UK
Mark D Griffiths, Nottingham Trent University, UK

Chapter 3
Determining the Risk of Digital Addiction to Adolescent Targets of Internet Trolling:
Implications for the UK Legal System...................................................................................... 31
Jonathan Bishop, Centre for Research into Online Communities and E-Learning Systems, UK

Section 2
Psychology and Behaviour Change

Chapter 4
Dangers of Playing with the Virtual Other in Mind: A Psychoanalytical View on Digital Role-
Playing Games and the Edge between Facilitating Personality Development and Endangering the Player’s Psyche.......................................................................................................................... 44
Katharina Mittlböck, University of Vienna, Austria
Chapter 5
Avoiding Adverse Consequences from Digital Addiction and Retaliatory Feedback: The Role of the Participation Continuum ................................................................. 62
  Ashu M. G. Solo, Maverick Technologies America Inc., USA
  Jonathan Bishop, Centre for Research into Online Communities and E-Learning Systems, UK

Chapter 6
“I Can’t Do It by Myself”: An IPA of Clients Seeking Psychotherapy for Their MMORPG Addiction................................................................. 78
  Daria Joanna Kuss, Nottingham Trent University, UK

Chapter 7
Cyber-Stalking or Just Plain Talking? Investigating the Linguistic Properties of Rape-Threat Messages as Compulsive Behaviours ......................................................... 111
  Mark Beech, Centre for Research into Online Communities and E-Learning Systems, UK
  Jonathan Bishop, Centre for Research into Online Communities and E-Learning Systems, UK

Section 3
Theory and Methods

Chapter 8
A Theoretical Model, Including User-Experience, Aesthetics, and Psychology, in the 3D Design Process ................................................................. 139
  Thomas Photiadis, Cyprus University of Technology, Cyprus
  Nicos Souleles, Cyprus University of Technology, Cyprus

Chapter 9
  Jonathan Bishop, Centre for Research into Online Communities and E-Learning Systems, UK

Chapter 10
The Association between Internet Addiction and Psychosocial Variables .............................................. 171
  Bahadir Bozoglan, Süleyman Demirel University, Turkey
  Veysel Demirer, Süleyman Demirel University, Turkey

Chapter 11
The Impacts of Alcohol on E-Dating Activity: Increases in Flame Trolling Corresponds with Higher Alcohol Consumption ........................................................................ 186
  Jason Barratt, Centre for Research into Online Communities and E-Learning Systems, UK
  Jonathan Bishop, Centre for Research into Online Communities and E-Learning Systems, UK
Section 4
Public Policy Issues

Chapter 12
Consulting the British Public in the Digital Age: Technological Innovation and Internet Addiction in the Web 2.0 Era................................................................................................................................. 199
   Shefali Virkar, University of Oxford, UK

Chapter 13
Responsible Gambling Laws’ Contributions to Behaviour Change in Problem Gamblers in Online Poker .................................................................................................................................................. 226
   Wynford Compton, Cardiff Metropolitan University, UK
   Dino M. Minoli, Cardiff Metropolitan University, UK
   Mark M. H. Goode, Cardiff Metropolitan University, UK

Chapter 14
The Games People Play: Exploring Technology Addiction within the Context of the Gamification of ICT Project Design for Public Sector Administration Reform......................................................... 262
   Shefali Virkar, University of Oxford, UK

Compilation of References ......................................................................................................................... 291

About the Contributors ............................................................................................................................... 329

Index ......................................................................................................................................................... 333