Acknowledgment

The editors would like to acknowledge the help of all the people involved in this project. Without their support, this book would not have become a reality. First, the editors would like to thank each one of our many chapter authors for their contributions. Our sincere gratitude goes to the authors who gave their time and expertise to this book. Second, the editors wish to acknowledge the valuable contributions of our Editorial Advisory Board members and peer-reviewers toward the improvement of quality, coherence, and content presentation of chapters.

A specific thank you to Hayley Kang and Brandon Carbaugh (our contacts at IGI-Global) who worked closely with us to bring this project to fruition and answered countless questions of ours during the process.

The editors would also like to thank all of their colleagues at the Atlanta University Center, Robert W. Woodruff Library for their support during our process of shaping an idea into a finished book. We appreciate the environment here that actively promotes engagement, creativity, and the development of research within the library field. A special thank you to Mrs. Loretta Parham, CEO and Library Director, as well as to Elizabeth Gail McClenny, Carolyn Hart, Marvelyn Thomas, and Eric Miller for providing the leadership and support that allows us to pursue and achieve excellence. Also, thank you to Dr. Rosaline Odom, Department Head, Discovery and Access Services, for her generosity with her time and her support of our ideas and projects.

The editors thank their husbands, John R. Decker and Owen B. Townes, for their enduring love and support, particularly throughout “crunch time” in the editing process.

And, to think this all started with, “hey, do you want to edit a book together about disasters and their impact on libraries?” Just as the edited volume process enriched our knowledge about the subject area, so too it deepened our friendship.
