Acknowledgment

We, the editors, wish to acknowledge the work of all persons who played an important role in taking this book project from its beginning to its completion. We thank the authors for contributing their perspectives, observations, and insights on many facets of marketing education. We are grateful to the reviewers who volunteered their time and service to help improve the content, scope, and quality of materials in this book. We are most appreciative of those authors who also doubled their contributions as reviewers.
