Acknowledgment

The editors would like to acknowledge the help of all the people involved in this project and, more specifically, the authors and reviewers that took part in the review process. Without their support, this book would not have become a reality.

First, the editors would like to thank each one of the authors for contributing their time and expertise to our book. Our special gratitude goes to the chapters’ authors of the last section, namely, our ACS Athens educators for their dedication to, and passion for their profession which they so admirably manifested through their i2Flex endeavors.

Second, the editors wish to acknowledge the valuable contributions of the reviewers regarding the improvement of quality, coherence, and content presentation of chapters. Most of the authors also served in that capacity; we highly appreciate their double task.

We would also like to thank the ACS Athens Reaccreditation Team—Steve Medeiros, Peggy Pelenis and Mary-Ann Augoustatos—for providing the action research framework, creating and sustaining a school-wide professional community focused on the “scholarship of teaching”, and supporting in a multitude of ways the i2Flex teacher-researchers in particular throughout their research journeys.

ACS Athens administration and support staff with particular reference to Mary Manos, Leda Tsoukia, and Helen Maravegias are also to be acknowledged for all their time and help.

We would like to thank IGI team for their continuous, timely, and meaningful support during the challenging time of making this book a reality.

Finally, we are much indebted to our families for their patience, understanding, support, and above all for believing that this work was significant enough to be shared with the larger education community!

María D. Averinou
American Community Schools (ACS) Athens, Greece

Stefanos P. Gialamas
American Community Schools (ACS) Athens, Greece