This book on “Multinational Enterprises Management Strategies in Developing Countries” is the product of highly professional efforts and collaborations with sincerity of many researchers, professors and students. I am thankful to all of them for sharing their ideas and experiences in the initial stages of the development of the book and their continued interest in the publication of the book to the end. All the chapter contributors are equally part and parcel of this project and without their contributions it would not have possible to get the book published timely and with quality. My sincere regards for all of them.

I remember in particular my colleague Professor Armando Quintanilla visiting my office on regular basis and giving his opinions on which themes and issues to be covered in the book based on his vast experience as a faculty of international business and director of the undergraduate international business program at campus Monterrey, Tecnológico de Monterrey. His interests and involvement in the book project are highly appreciated and valued.

This book, as any other book projects demanded technical, logistical and administrative help in different stages of the publication process, therefore, and especially, I extend many thanks and gratitude to the teaching assistants and postgraduate students at the EGADE Business School, Tecnológico de Monterrey, for providing timely helping hands in searching for articles, cross-checking references and printing materials, to mention a few:

Marinette Bisten,
María Esther García Mátar,
Víctor Julián De la Torre,
Federico Salazar,
Wilbert Pérez Torres,
Ricardo García.

As always, my sincere appreciations go to the School of Business, Social Sciences and Humanities, campus Monterrey, Tecnológico de Monterrey, for providing me space, time and all the relevant supports whenever needed in order to initiate such an important research project and complete it on time. Last but not the least, all those scholars who have created and built the knowledge body of international business in general, and theories and concepts in the field of managing multinational enterprises in particular, deserve appreciations and thanks.

In life we learn from others. We should share with others in life.
