The book, Revealing Gender Inequalities and Perceptions in the South Asian Countries through Discourse Analysis, is composed of papers focusing on the persistent inequalities and gender discrimination in developing countries.

The Call for Papers received an overwhelming response and the editorial team would like to thank all the young scholars who came forward based on their relevant knowledge and experience. The team would also like to acknowledge their dedication and commitment in fulfilling the requirements of the publication process.

It is worth mentioning that, the editorial team received around twenty-four chapters for the book. The Editorial team then negotiated with the publisher and would like to express their sincere gratitude to IGI Global Publisher, especially to our contact person Courtney Tychinski for providing us with the suggestion of splitting the book in two projects. Accordingly, they also suggested the given title and a tentative table of contents for the two books. This made it very easy for us to work further in finalizing both the books. We are extremely thankful to them.

The editorial group would like to offer their gratitude and thanks to all our designated reviewers for their comments, suggestions and constructive criticisms on each paper which helped the authors in improving their chapters for inclusion.

Special thanks are due to our young, enthusiastic energetic and interested colleagues, Aditi Sabur and Abu Saleh Mohammad Sowad who have been a constant source of inspiration for us, have assisted us in different stages, and for their relentless efforts in taking the pain of arranging all the papers in their sequential order and compiling them to fit with the title of the book.

Finally, as a Chief Editor, I would like to express my thanks to all my team members for their constant cooperation, assistance, support, warm and helpful attitude.
