Table of Contents

Preface .................................................................................................................................................. xiv

Section 1
Introduction and Theoretical Concepts

Chapter 1
Applications of Actor-Network Theory in Media Studies: A Research Overview ....................... 1
Markus Spöhrer, University of Konstanz, Germany

Chapter 2
The End of Media: Reconstructing Media Studies on the Basis of Actor-Network Theory .......... 20
Andréa Belliger, Institute of Communication and Leadership (IKF), Switzerland
David John Krieger, Institute of Communication and Leadership (IKF), Switzerland

Chapter 3
From Intermediality to Intermateriality: Actor-Network Theory as a “Translation” of Post-
Essentialist Media Studies ................................................................................................................ 38
Andrea Seier, University of Vienna, Austria

Chapter 4
The Subject of Media Studies ........................................................................................................ 51
Joost van Loon, Catholic University Eichstätt-Ingolstadt, Germany

Chapter 5
What Critical Media Studies Should Not Take from Actor-Network Theory ............................. 66
Jan Teurlings, University of Amsterdam, The Netherlands

Section 2
Case Studies

Chapter 6
A Cyborg Perspective: The Cochlear Implant and Actor-Networking Perception .................. 80
Markus Spöhrer, University of Konstanz, Germany

Chapter 7
Actor-Network Theory and Media Studies: Performing the Story of Local Television ............ 96
Emma Louise Hemmingway, Nottingham Trent University, UK
Chapter 8
Applying Actor-Network Theory in Production Studies: The Formation of the Film Production Network of Paul Lazarus’ Barbarosa (1982) .................................................. 114
Markus Spöhrer, University of Konstanz, Germany

Chapter 9
Anaphoric Trajectories of Creative Processes: The Case of a Failed Film Project .............. 142
Sara Malou Strandvad, Roskilde University, Denmark

Chapter 10
“To Be as Real as Possible”: The Actor-Network of Status YO! and the Production of HipHop Authenticity .................................................................................................................. 156
Markus Spöhrer, University of Konstanz, Germany

Chapter 11
The Home Console Dispositive: Digital Games and Gaming as Socio-Technical Arrangements...... 174
Harald Waldrich, University of Konstanz, Germany

Section 3
Criticizing Actor-Network-Theory and Media Studies

Chapter 12
On Habit and Fiction in Latours’ Inquiry and Fictional Knowledge on Habit in Proust’s Recherche ........................................................................................................................................... 198
Michael Cuntz, Bauhaus Universität Weimar, Germany

Chapter 13
Talking about Associations and Descriptions or a Short Story about Associology .................. 220
Beate Ochsner, University of Konstanz, Germany

Chapter 14
A Critique of Operativity: Notes on a Technological Imperative ........................................ 234
Dieter Mersch, Zurich University of the Arts, Switzerland

Chapter 15
Mind the Gap: On Actor-Network Theory and German Media Theory .............................. 249
Veronika Pöhnl, University of Konstanz, Germany

Chapter 16
ANTi-Human: The Ethical Blindspot .................................................................................... 266
Michel Schreiber, University of Constance, Germany

Compilation of References .................................................................................................. 277

About the Contributors ........................................................................................................ 309

Index .................................................................................................................................. 311