Acknowledgment

There is a wide range of people who have influenced my evolving interest in indigenous knowledge systems, far too many to mention them all. Most of the members of the editorial board were instrumental in encouraging me to put this book together. I wish to sincerely thank all of them for believing in, and supporting this project.

Second, I wish to acknowledge the valuable contributions of the reviewers who acted as gatekeepers and quality assured and checked the coherence, and content presentation of chapters. Some of the authors also served as referees; I highly appreciate their double task. I am also indebted to the authors whose work appears herein. Their commitment to their work and to this project was sterling. Eleana Wehr at IGI Global maintained a steadying hand through the process of developing this book. I will use the same opportunity to thank all the copyright holders who granted some authors the right to use their work in this book. Finally, I acknowledge Professor Munyaradzi Mawere for his wonderful editorial support. All this would not have been possible without the support of my family and close friends from the indigenous community.

In Memoriam

The Editorial Board and I wish to express our deepest sympathy for the recent passing of one of the Editorial Board members and chapter authors, Dr. Lawton Hikwa, who wrote Chapter 13 with Esabel Maisiri. Lawton’s passing is indeed a great loss to our indigenous knowledge systems community. His memory will be kept alive not through this book, but also through the lectures, papers and his research which will continue to inspire.
