Acknowledgment

The editors gratefully acknowledge essential contributions from the chapter authors who are the faculty members, administrators, researchers, instructional designers, and thought leaders who have bravely entered the foray of the modern competency-based education movement in higher education. Their innovative spirits, scholarship, and leadership create a bright future for competency-based education and for the many students who benefit from alternative, learner-centered approaches to higher education.

There are many reviewers to thank and we are grateful to those authors who so willingly reviewed more than one chapter: Tammi Cooper and Karen Mattison. A particular thank you goes to those reviewers who were not authors but graciously shared their time and expertise to support this cause: Stephanie Krauss, Stacy Sculthorp, Meg Benke, and Alli Bell.

We also wish to thank Andrea Bishop for her extensive (and good-natured) editing support in preparation of the final manuscript and Davis Hagan for his support in managing the many details associated with publishing a book.
