Acknowledgments

Putting together a comprehensive publication of this magnitude requires tremendous involvement and assistance from many individuals. The most important goal of editing this dictionary was to compile a comprehensive list of terms, acronyms and their definitions in the field of information science and technology. This goal could not have been achieved without the valuable contributions of more than 2,500 researchers in the field of IST, and I am very thankful for their contributions to this publication.

In terms of editorial assistance, I would like to convey my deep appreciation and gratitude to my editorial staff at Idea Group Reference (IGR), including Ms. Michelle Potter, former acquisitions and development editor, for her immeasurable assistance during the development process for this publication. I would also like to express my many thanks to Ms. Kristin Roth, development editor, Ms. Lynley Lapp, former assistant development editor, Ms. Kristin Klinger, acquisitions editor, Ms. Lauren Kenes, former editorial assistant, Ms. Sara Reed, managing editor, Ms. Jennifer Neidig, senior managing editor, Ms. Diane Huskinson, assistant managing editor, Ms. Lisa Tosheff, graphic artist, and Ms. Maria Boyer, copy editor for their involvement and assistance with this publication. My warmest thanks also go to my wife, Beth Peiffer, for her support, wisdom, encouragement, understanding, patience, and love. My heart also goes to my two young girls, Basha and Anar, for the joys that they have brought to my life. Finally, much gratitude goes to all those who have taught me immeasurable amounts during the past three decades.
