Table of Contents

Preface ................................................................................................................................................xiv

Section 1
E-Agriculture Development Country: Case Studies

Chapter 1
Awareness and the Use of Mobile Phones for Market Linkage by Smallholder Farmers in Kenya ..... 1
  Julius Juma Okello, University of Nairobi, Kenya
  Ruth M. Okello, Michigan State University, USA
  Edith Ofwona-Adera, International Development Research Center, Nairobi, Kenya

Chapter 2
E-Agriculture Development in South Africa: Opportunities, Challenges and Prospects ............... 19
  Rachael Tembo, Cape Peninsula University of Technology, South Africa
  Blessing Mukabeta Maumbe, Eastern Kentucky University, USA

Chapter 3
Agriculture, Communication, and Socioeconomic Development: A Proposal for e-Agriculture in Nigeria .............................................................................................................................................. 43
  Emmanuel C. Alozie, University of Southern Mississippi, USA

Chapter 4
Newly Emerging e-Commerce Initiatives on the Agricultural Market in Poland ......................... 62
  Mieczysław Adamowicz, Warsaw University of Life Sciences (SGGW), Poland
  Dariusz Strzębicki, Warsaw University of Life Sciences (SGGW), Poland

Section 2
E-Agriculture Development: Conceptual Frameworks

Chapter 5
The Development of e-Agriculture in Sub-Saharan Africa: Key Considerations, Challenges, and Policy Implications .................................................................................................................. 73
  Blessing Mukabeta Maumbe, Eastern Kentucky University, USA
Chapter 6
Diffusion and Dissemination of Agricultural Knowledge: An e-Communication Model for Rural India

I.V. Malhan, University of Jammu, India
Shivarama Rao, Wipro Technologies, India

Chapter 7
Using ICT to Resolve the Modernization Paradox for Rural Communities in Africa: A Theoretical Exploration and Conceptualization

Dawn Hinton, Saginaw Valley State University, USA
Joseph Ofori-Dankwa, Saginaw Valley State University, USA

Section 3
E-Government Country: Case Studies

Chapter 8
Connected Government for a Developing Country Context: An Assessment of the Extent of Inter-Departmental Integration for Selected Government Departments in Zimbabwe

Ephias Ruhode, Cape Peninsula University of Technology, South Africa
Vesper Owei, Cape Peninsula University of Technology, South Africa

Chapter 9
Zambia and e-Government: An Assessment and Recommendations

Neal Coates, Abilene Christian University, USA
Lisa Nikolaus, Abilene Christian University, USA

Chapter 10
Globalized Workforce Development and Responsible Global Citizenship through e-Literacy Capacity Building Programs for Low Income African Countries

Benjamin A. Ogwo, State University of New York, USA
Vincent E. Onweh, University of Uyo, Nigeria
Stella C. Nwizu, University of Nigeria, Nigeria

Chapter 11
Building Capacity for Electronic Governance in Developing Countries: Critical Success Factors

Rogers W’O Okot-Uma, Studies Forum International, UK
J.K. Ssewanyana, Makerere University, Uganda

Chapter 12
The Use of Information and Communication Technologies for Health Service Delivery in Namibia: Perceptions, Technology Choices, and Policy Implications for Sub-Saharan Africa

Meke I. Shivute, Polytechnic of Namibia, Namibia
Blessing Mukabeta Maumbe, Eastern Kentucky University, USA
Chapter 13
ICTs as Tools for Poverty Reduction: The Tanzanian Experience
Zaipuna O. Yonah, Tanzania Telecommunications Company Ltd., Tanzania
Baanda A. Salim, Sokoine University of Agriculture, Tanzania

Chapter 14
Impact of E-Government Implementation on Poverty Reduction in Rural India:
Selected Case Studies
Sandeep Kaur, PSG College of Arts and Science, India
N. Mathiyalagan, PSG College of Arts and Science, India

Chapter 15
The Development of an Organic Agriculture Model: A System Dynamics Approach to Support Decision-Making Processes
Črtomir Rozman, University of Maribor, Slovenia
Andrej Škraba, University of Maribor, Slovenia
Miroljub Kljajić, University of Maribor, Slovenia
Karmen Pažek, University of Maribor, Slovenia
Martina Bavec, University of Maribor, Slovenia
Franci Bavec, University of Maribor, Slovenia

Chapter 16
Role of Telecommunications in Precision Agriculture
James M. McKinion, USDA-ARS, USA

Chapter 17
Nicolas Pejout, Centre d’Etude d’Afrique Noire (CEAN), France

Compilation of References

About the Contributors

Index