Preface ................................................................. vi
Acknowledgments ...................................................... xvii

SECTION I: EDUCATION AND LEARNING

Chapter I
Diversity Challenges in Online Learning ......................... 1
   Cecilia Stanton, Capella University, USA

Chapter II
Empowerment of Marginal Communities Through Information-Driven Learning ........................................... 16
   Hakikur Rahman, Sustainable Development Networking Program, Bangladesh

SECTION II: SCIENCE AND RESEARCH

Chapter III
ICTs, Empowerment, and Development: Articulating Grassroots Analysis Through Participatory Approaches ......................... 44
   Hannah Beardon, ActionAid, UK
Chapter IV
Affecting Change from the Grassroots: Making a Difference without Power, Prestige, or Money ............................................................... 62
Timlynn T. Babitsky, Sohodojo, USA
James F. Salmons, Sohodojo, USA

SECTION III: SOCIAL AND HUMAN SCIENCE

Chapter V
Social Structures for Access, Use, and Development ....................... 95
Sarah Parkinson, University of Guelph, Canada

Chapter VI
Enacting and Interpreting Technology — From Usage to Well-Being: Experiences of Indigenous Peoples with ICTs............. 124
Björn-Sören Gigler, London School of Economics and Political Science, UK

Chapter VII
Helping Close the Digital Divide for Financially Disadvantaged Seniors ......................................................................................... 165
Al P. Mizell, Nova Southeastern University, USA

Chapter VIII
Community-Based Information Technology Interventions for Persons with Mental Illness .................................................................. 191
Rosanna Tarsiero, University of Pisa, Italy

SECTION IV: INFORMATION NETWORKING AND KNOWLEDGE MANAGEMENT

Chapter IX
Connecting the First Mile: A Best Practice Framework for ICT-Based Knowledge Sharing Initiatives ......................................... 227
Surmaya Talyarkhan, Practical Action, UK
David J. Grimshaw, Practical Action, UK
Lucky Lowe, Practical Action, UK

Chapter X
The Internet as a Fundraising Tool for Marginal Communities in South Africa ............................................................... 258
Fazila Farouk, SANGONeT, South Africa
David Barnard, SANGONeT, South Africa