Acknowledgments

A publication can only be as good as the material it contains, and as editor of this encyclopedia, I acknowledge the excellent work of all whose considerable effort has gone into producing the large number of comprehensive articles it contains. Contributions to the encyclopedia highlight the huge amount of research from around the world that is being undertaken in relation to portals. My thanks go to all contributors for sharing this research with us.

I also acknowledge the assistance provided by those involved in the reviewing of encyclopedia articles. Most of the authors of articles included in the encyclopedia also served as referees for articles written by others. My thanks go to all these people who provided constructive and comprehensive reviews. Without their support the project would have been impossible.

A project like this really relies on technology. Without use of the Internet and e-mail, it would not have been possible to put together a large work like this in anything like such a short time. Reliance on postal mail would have made this task so much slower and more difficult, and my thanks also go to all those authors who so promptly replied to my many e-mail requests.

Thanks to my Editorial Advisory Board members, Bill Davey, Stephen Burgess, and Mohini Singh, for their support and assistance during the design and compilation of the encyclopedia. Finally, thanks also to my wife Barbara for putting up with my absences due to the large amount of time at the computer this project has involved.

Arthur Tatnall, PhD
Victoria University, Australia
March 2007