Table of Contents

Preface ....................................................................................................... vi

Section I: E-Procurement: Theoretical Underpinnings

Chapter I
Perspectives from IOIS, EDI, and Channel Management:
Research Issues in E-Procurement ....................................................... 1
Ashis K. Pani, XLRI, India

Chapter II
Organizational Assimilation of E-Procurement:
An Institutional Perspective and the Research Model ................. 21
Kishor Vaidya, University of New England, Australia

Section II: Country Level Analysis

Chapter III
E-Procurement Success Factors:
Challenges and Opportunities for a Small Developing Country ..... 42
Mateja Podlogar, University of Maribor, Slovenia

Chapter IV
Challenges in Implementation of E-Procurement in the Indian Government ............................................................................ 76
Ramanathan Somasundaram, National Institute for Smart Government, India
Chapter V
Barriers to E-Procurement Adoption:
The Turkish Case .................................................................101
Gonca Telli Yamamoto, Okan University, Turkey
Faruk Karaman, Okan University, Turkey

Section III: Analyzing Adoption

Chapter VI
Managing E-Relationships in a Supply Network .....................127
Susanna Xin Xu, National University of Ireland - Galway, Ireland
Joe Nandhakumar, University of Warwick, UK

Chapter VII
ICT Adoption in Firms by Using Endogenous Metrics ...............161
Michela Serrecchia, Institute for Informatics and Telematics,
Italian National Research Council (IIT-CNR), Italy
Irma Serrecchia, Institute for Informatics and Telematics,
Italian National Research Council (IIT-CNR), Italy
Maurizio Martinelli, Institute for Informatics and Telematics,
Italian National Research Council (IIT-CNR), Italy

Chapter VIII
Analyzing E-Procurement Adoption Efforts:
Case Study of an Indian Steel Manufacturer ...........................197
Amit Agrahari, SETLabs – Infosys Technologies Ltd, India

Section IV: Technical Perspective

Chapter IX
A Service-Oriented Agent-Based Model for
Electronic Procurement ....................................................233
Manas Ranjan Patra, Berhampur University, India
Chapter X
Application of Web Services in the Context of E-Procurement:
An SME Foci ........................................................................................................265
   Stanley Oliver, University of Bolton, UK
   Kiran Maringanti, University of Bolton, UK

Chapter XI
Complementary Features of Reverse Auction Web Sites:
A Survey ....................................................................................................................306
   Aayush Shrivastava, Indian Institute of Technology, India
   Gautam Gupta, Indian Institute of Technology, India
   Pratap K. J. Mohapatra, Indian Institute of Technology, India

Glossary ..................................................................................................................326

About the Authors ..................................................................................................333

Index .....................................................................................................................338