Table of Contents

Preface .................................................................................................................................................. xvi

Chapter 1
Evaluating Health Information Services: A Patient Perspective Analysis ................................. 1
  Umit Topacan, Bogazici University, Turkey
  A. Nuri Basoglu, Bogazici University, Turkey
  Tugrul U. Daim, Portland State University, USA

Chapter 2
Gastrointestinal Motility Online Educational Endeavor ................................................................. 14
  Shiu-Chung Au, State University of New York Upstate Medical University, USA
  Amar Gupta, University of Arizona, USA

Chapter 3
Envisioning a National e-Medicine Network Architecture in a Developing Country:
A Case Study ....................................................................................................................................... 35
  Fikreyohannes Lemma, Addis Ababa University, Ethiopia
  Mieso K. Denko, University of Guelph, Canada
  Joseph K. Tan, Wayne State University, USA
  Samuel Kinde Kassegne, San Diego State University, USA

Chapter 4
Assessing Physician and Nurse Satisfaction with an Ambulatory Care EMR:
One Facility’s Approach ................................................................................................................... 54
  Karen A. Wager, Medical University of South Carolina, USA
  James S. Zoller, Medical University of South Carolina, USA
  David E. Soper, Medical University of South Carolina, USA
  James B. Smith, Medical University of South Carolina, USA
  John L. Waller, Medical University of South Carolina, USA
  Frank C. Clark, Medical University of South Carolina, USA
Chapter 5
Information Technology (IT) and the Healthcare Industry: A SWOT Analysis ............................... 65
   Marilyn Helms, Dalton State College, USA
   Rita Moore, Dalton State College, USA
   Mohammad Ahmadi, University of Tennessee at Chattanooga, USA

Chapter 6
Using a Neural Network to Predict Participation in a Maternity Care Coordination Program .......... 84
   George E. Heilman, Winston-Salem State University, USA
   Monica Cain, Winston-Salem State University, USA
   Russell S. Morton, Winston-Salem State University, USA

Chapter 7
Can IT Act as a Catalyst for Change in Hospitals? Some New Evidence ........................................ 94
   Teemu Paavola, LifeIT Plc, Finland

Chapter 8
Informatics Application Challenges for Managed Care Organizations: The Three Faces of Population Segmentation and a Proposed Classification System ........................................ 102
   Stephan Kudyba, New Jersey Institute of Technology, USA
   Theodore L. Perry, Health Research Corporation, USA
   Jeffrey J. Rice, Independent Scholar, USA

Chapter 9
Scrutinizing the Rule: Privacy Realization in HIPAA ................................................................. 112
   S. Al-Fedaghi, Kuwait University, Kuwait

Chapter 10
In What Ways Does Web Technology Support the Individual in Choice Reforms in Health Care?
A Comparison among Norway, Denmark, and Sweden ................................................................. 126
   Agneta Ranerup, Göteborg University, Sweden

Chapter 11
Characteristics of Good Clinical Educators from Medical Students’ Perspectives:
A Qualitative Inquiry Using a Web-Based Survey System ......................................................... 145
   Gary Sutkin, University of Pittsburgh School of Medicine, USA
   Hansel Burley, Texas Tech University, USA
   Ke Zhang, Wayne State University, USA
   Neetu Arora, Texas Tech University, USA

Chapter 12
Open Source Software: A Key Component of E-Health in Developing Nations ............................ 162
   David Parry, Auckland University of Technology, New Zealand
   Emma Parry, National Women’s Health, Auckland District Health Board, New Zealand
   Phurb Dorji, Jigme Dorji Wanchuck National Referral Hospital, Bhutan
   Peter Stone, University of Auckland, New Zealand
Chapter 13
An Empirical Investigation into the Adoption of Open Source Software in Hospitals .......... 175

Gilberto Munoz-Cornejo, University of Maryland Baltimore County, USA
Carolyn B. Seaman, University of Maryland Baltimore County, USA
A. Güneş Koru, University of Maryland Baltimore County, USA

Chapter 14
Intelligent Agent Framework for Secure Patient-Doctor Profiling and Profile Matching .......... 195

Masoud Mohammadian, University of Canberra, Australia
Ric Jentzsch, Compucaet Research Pty Limited, Australia

Chapter 15
Towards a Conceptual Framework of Adopting Ubiquitous Technology in Chronic Health Care ................................................................. 214

Jongtae Yu, Mississippi State University, USA
Chengqi Guo, James Madison University, USA
Mincheol Kim, Jeju National University, South Korea

Chapter 16
E-Patients Empower Healthcare: Discovery of Adverse Events in Online Communities .......... 232

Roy Rada, University of Maryland Baltimore County, USA

Chapter 17
Towards Process-of-Care Aware Emergency Department Information Systems:
A Clustering Approach to Activity Views Elicitation ......................................................... 241

Andrzej S.Ceglowski, Monash University, Australia
Leonid Churilov, The University of Melbourne, Australia

Chapter 18
Applying Dynamic Causal Mining in Health Service Management .................................. 255

Yi Wang, Nottingham Trent University, UK

Chapter 19
Application of Unified Modelling Language (UML) to the Modelling of Health Care Systems:
An Introduction and Literature Survey .............................................................................. 275

Christos Vasilakis, University College London, UK
Dorota Lecnzarowicz, University of Westminster, UK
Chooi Lee, Kingston Hospital, UK

Chapter 20
TreeWorks: Advances in Scalable Decision Trees ............................................................ 288

Paul Harper, Cardiff University, UK
Evandro Leite Jr., University of Southampton, UK
Chapter 21
Ambient Intelligence and Pervasive Architecture Designed within the EPI-MEDICS
Personal ECG Monitor............................................................................................................. 302
  Hussein Atoui, Université de Lyon and INSERM, France
  David Télisson, Université de Lyon and INSERM, France
  Jocelyne Fyan, Université de Lyon and INSERM, France
  Paul Rubel, Université de Lyon and INSERM, France

Compilation of References ............................................................................................................. 312

About the Contributors ................................................................................................................. 343

Index................................................................................................................................................ 348