Table of Contents

Foreword ........................................................................................................................................... xix

Preface ................................................................................................................................................ xx

Acknowledgment ............................................................................................................................ xxxii

Opening Vignette ............................................................................................................................ xiii

Section 1
Intersections of Virtual Settings, Collaboration, and Writing

Chapter 1
Principles for Exploring Virtual Collaborative Writing ................................................................. 1
Beth L. Hewett, University of Maryland University College, USA
Charlotte Robidoux, Hewlett-Packard Company, USA
Dirk Remley, Kent State University, USA

Chapter 2
Frameworks for Talking about Virtual Collaborative Writing ...................................................... 28
Beth L. Hewett, University of Maryland University College, USA
Dirk Remley, Kent State University, USA
Pavel Zemliansky, James Madison University, USA
Anne DiPardo, University of Colorado, USA

Section 2
Building a Virtual Writing Team

Chapter 3
Case Study: “Can You See Me?” Writing toward Clarity in a Software Development Life Cycle .............................................................................................................................. 53
Anne DiPardo, University of Colorado, USA
Mike DiPardo, Chezelle Group, USA
Chapter 4
Engaging in Virtual Collaborative Writing: Issues, Obstacles, and Strategies ......................... 65
  Patti G. Wojahn, New Mexico State University, USA
  Kristin A. Blicharz, IBM Corp., USA
  Stephanie K. Taylor, IBM Corp., USA

Chapter 5
Forming Trust in Virtual Writing Teams: Perspectives and Applications................................. 88
  Sean D. Williams, Clemson University, USA

Section 3
Managing Team Dynamics

Chapter 6
Case Study: A Collaborative of Content Designers and Developers ........................................ 112
  Beth Brunk-Chavez, The University of Texas at El Paso, USA
  Sunay Palsole, The University of Texas at El Paso, USA

Chapter 7
Removing Barriers to Collaborating in Virtual Writing Projects ............................................ 128
  William Carney, Cameron University, USA

Chapter 8
Facilitating Virtual Collaborative Writing through Informed Leadership ............................... 144
  Catherine Lyman, NetApp, Inc., USA

Section 4
Planning and Making Decisions Virtually

Chapter 9
Case Study: Putting their Heads Together Virtually: Case Studies on Collaboration using Content Management Technology .......................................................... 158
  Suzanne Mescan, Vasont Systems, USA

Chapter 10
Optimizing Team Performance: Collaborative Virtual Writing ............................................. 174
  Charlotte Robidoux, Hewlett-Packard Company, USA

Chapter 11
Making Collaborative Writing Decisions Virtually ................................................................. 190
  Alexia P. Idoura, Symantec Corporation, USA
Section 5
Developing Content Virtually

Chapter 12
Case Study: Advancing New Authoring Strategies through Virtual Collaboration .......................... 215
Judith Kessler, Sybase, Inc., USA

Chapter 13
Using Standards to Promote Collaboration among Writers .............................................................. 237
France Baril, Architextus Inc., Canada

Chapter 14
Developing Content in a Reuse Environment ...................................................................................... 258
Norma Emery, Alcatel-Lucent, USA

Section 6
Supporting Quality Writing through Virtual Collaboration

Chapter 15
Case Study: Managing Content Quality and Consistency in a Collaborative Virtual World ................................. 285
Kent Taylor, acrolinx® North America, Inc., USA

Chapter 16
Robbin Zeff Warner, Independent Scholar, Belgium
Beth L. Hewett, University of Maryland University College, USA
Charlotte Robidoux, Hewlett-Packard Company, USA

Chapter 17
Collaborating with Customers Virtually to Improve Content ............................................................. 319
Mirhonda Studevant, Ceridian Corporation, USA

Chapter 18
Preparing Writers for Virtual Environments ......................................................................................... 335
Pavel Zemliansky, James Madison University, USA
Section 7
Using New Media in Virtual Collaborative Writing

Chapter 19
Case Study: Writing, Rhetoric, and Design: A Virtual Collaboration Case Study
Douglas Eyman, George Mason University, USA

Chapter 20
Inventing Non-Discursive Text in Collaborative Environments
Joddy Murray, Texas Christian University, USA

Chapter 21
The Mutual Presence of RP-7 and the Future of Collaborative Writing
David W. Overbey, Bellarmine University, USA

Section 8
Collaborating Virtually to Develop This Book: A Discussion

Chapter 22
Collaborating Virtually to Develop This Book
Charlotte Robidoux, Hewlett-Packard Company, USA
Beth L. Hewett, University of Maryland University College, USA

Glossary

Compilation of References

About the Contributors

Index