Acknowledgment

This book is the result of the collective work of more than one hundred scientists, industry experts and practitioners in the fields of interoperability for administrations and businesses. I am highly grateful to all the authors who provided their continued efforts towards a high quality publication. I also am very pleased to acknowledge the support of all friends and colleagues involved in overall guidance, stimulation of the community, the review process and the book finalization.

Many thanks go to colleagues at the National Technical University of Athens and the University of the Aegean in Samos, for the encouragement during the entire process, and especially professors Jesus - Emmanuel Samouilidis, Euripidis Loukis, Dimitris Askounis, Stefanos Gritzalis and John Psarras, who also stood by me during the years of change.

This publication would have certainly been extremely difficult, without the support of the interoperability team at NTUA: many thanks to George Gionis, Fenareti Lampathaki, Sotiris Koussouris, Dimitris Sarandis and Tassos Tsitsanis - among the leading PhD researchers in this team.

Special thanks also go to the IGI Global team and particularly to Christine Bufton for her professional guidance, support and feedback – decisive in keeping this project on schedule.

Finally, I thank my family members for giving and taking love, support and hope for a better world, for all.

Yannis Charalabidis
Athens & Samos, Greece