Acknowledgment

I wish to thank all the people who were involved in different phases during the preparation of this book, including all the authors who have submitted their important contributions to this book and also provided assistance in reviewing the submitted chapters, all the advisory editorial board members who have helped in the review of the submissions and given useful suggestions on the structure of the book, and the executive editors at IGI Global, in particular, Mr. Joel A. Gamon, who has provided many helpful suggestions and answered each question that I raised when preparing this book. My thanks also go to Clive Cheong Took and Hector Perez-Meana for their assistance in the review process. Finally, I would like to take this opportunity to thank my wife and lovely daughter for their consistent support and love. Without the unselfish assistance of all these people, the successful publication of the book would not have been possible.
