Table of Contents

Preface .................................................................................................................................................. xii

Acknowledgment ................................................................................................................................. xv

Section 1
 Setting the Scene for Cyberterrorism and Other Cyber Attacks

Chapter 1
The Security Practitioners’ Perspective ............................................................................................... 1
  Eduardo Gelbstein, Webster University, Switzerland

Chapter 2
Economic, Political, and Social Threats in the Information Age .......................................................... 17
  Eduardo Gelbstein, Webster University, Switzerland
  Marcus Wuest, Deutsche Bank (London), UK
  Stephen Fridakis, Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), Rome, Italy

Chapter 3
Critical Information Infrastructure and Cyber-Terrorism ...................................................................... 31
  Olivia Bosch, International Security and Communications Ltd., London, UK

Chapter 4
Attackers: Internal and External ........................................................................................................... 41
  Eduardo Gelbstein, Webster University, Switzerland

Chapter 5
Threats, Vulnerability, Uncertainty, and Information Risk ................................................................. 59
  Eduardo Gelbstein, Webster University, Switzerland

Chapter 6
ICT and Security Governance: Doing the Right Things the Right Way (and Well Enough)............ 74
  Eduardo Gelbstein, Webster University, Switzerland
  Tom Kellermann, Security Awareness at Core Security, USA
Chapter 7
Concerns About What Will Happen Next: Should These Things Keep You Awake at Night?............ 92
Eduardo Gelbstein, Webster University, Switzerland

Section 2
Law and Policy Perspectives
Introduction: Weak Legal Framework and Limited International Cooperation......................... 113
Pauline C. Reich, Waseda University, Japan
Eduardo Gelbstein, Webster University, Switzerland

Chapter 8
To Define or Not to Define: Law and Policy Conundrums for the Cybercrime, National Security, International Law and Military Law Communities .............................................................. 132
Pauline C. Reich, Waseda University, Japan

Chapter 9
Anonymity, Actual Incidents, Cyber Attacks, and Digital Immobilization.............................. 170
Pauline C. Reich, Waseda University, Japan
Stuart Weinstein, University of Hertfordshire, UK
Charles Wild, University of Hertfordshire, UK
Allan S. Cabanlong, Philippines National Police, Philippines

Chapter 10
Culture Clashes: Freedom, Privacy, and Government Surveillance Issues Arising in Relation to National Security and Internet Use ...................................................................................... 200
Pauline C. Reich, Waseda University, Japan

Chapter 11
What is Cyberterrorism and How Real is the Threat? A Review of the Academic Literature, 1996 – 2009 ............................................................................................................................... 279
Maura Conway, Dublin City University, Ireland

Chapter 12
Cyber-Search and Cyber-Seizure: Policy Considerations of Cyber Operations and Fourth Amendment Implications ............................................................................................................. 308
Catherine B. Lotrionte, Georgetown University, USA

Chapter 13
Terrorism and the Internet: Do We Need an International Solution? ...................................... 352
Gilbert Ramsay, University of St Andrews, UK
Section 3
Case Studies

Chapter 14
Case Study: India - Terrorism and Terrorist Use of the Internet/Technology ........................................... 377
   Pauline C. Reich, Waseda University, Japan

Chapter 15
China’s Cyber Tool: Striving to Attain Electronic Shi? ................................................................. 409
   Timothy L. Thomas, United States Armed Forces (Retired), USA

Chapter 16
The United Kingdom’s Centre for the Protection of National Infrastructure: An Evaluation of the UK
Government’s Response Mechanism to Cyber Attacks on Critical Infrastructures....................... 428
   Stuart Weinstein, University of Hertfordshire, UK
   Charles Wild, University of Hertfordshire, UK

Compilation of References .................................................................................................................. 447

About the Contributors ............................................................................................................. 489

Index.................................................................................................................................................... 492