Acknowledgments

First and foremost, I acknowledge all the wonderful contributing authors to this book. They come from a wide range of geo-cultural backgrounds, and they have enriched this book by making equally wide and varied contributions emanating from both intense research and practical industrial experience. This variation is reflected in the contents and presentation of the chapters. One thing in common, though—and which exudes through the individual chapters—is the dedication and hard work of each and every author in this book. Therefore, to these authors, I express my sincere gratitude and thanks.

Furthermore, I would specifically like to thank the following individuals (my PhD students specifically for their help and work): Dinesh Arunatileka, Bhargav Bhatt, Yogesh Deshpande, Anant Dhume, Samir El-Masri, Abbass Ghanbary*, Darrell Jackson, Vijay Khandelwal, Anand Kuppuswami*, Yi-Chen Lan, Girish Mamdepur, Javed Matin, Makis (Ioakim) Marmaridis, San Murugesan, Chris Payne, Anand Pradhan, Prabhat Pradhan, Mahesh Raisinghani, Prince Soundararajan, Ketan Vanjara, and Houman Younessi.

My thanks to my lovely family: wife Asha, daughter Sonki Priyadarashani, and son Keshav Raja, as well as my extended family, Chinar and Girish Mamdepur. This book is dedicated to my son, Keshav Raja, because of his disappointment and boredom with normal mobile phones at the ripe old age of 9+. All kids of around that age are going to grow up using mobile technologies in a way that is utterly unimaginable and hence I “pre-pay” my respect to them!
