Table of Contents

Foreword.............................................................................................................................................. xx

Preface................................................................................................................................................ xxii

Acknowledgment................................................................................................................................... xxxii

Section I
Assessment Technologies and Instruments

Chapter I
Multi-Tier Design Assessment in the Development of Complex Organizational Systems ............... 1
   Melissa A. Dyehouse, Purdue University, USA
   John Y. Baek, Center for Advancement of Informal Science Education, USA
   Richard A. Lesh, Indiana University, USA

Chapter II
A Critical Thinking Rubric as the Basis of Assessment and Curriculum ........................................ 22
   Hedva Lewittes, State University of New York, College at Old Westbury, USA

Chapter III
A Survey of Effective Technologies to Assess Student Learning..................................................... 47
   Suzanne Pieper, Northern Arizona University, USA
   Erika Edwards, Northern Arizona University, USA
   Brandon Haist, Northern Arizona University, USA
   Walter Nolan, Northern Arizona University, USA

Chapter IV
Assessing Creativity Using the Consensual Assessment Technique .............................................. 65
   John Baer, Rider University, USA
   Sharon S. McKool, Rider University, USA
Chapter V
Creativity Assessment in Higher Education ................................................................. 78
  Christine Charyton, Ohio State University, USA
  Zorana Ivcevic, Tufts University, USA
  Jonathan A. Plucker, Indiana University, USA
  James C. Kaufman, Learning Research Institute, California State University at San Bernardino, USA

Chapter VI
The Technology of Writing Assessment and Racial Validity........................................... 97
  Asao B. Inoue, California State University, Fresno, USA

Chapter VII
Qualitative and Quantitative Methods as Complementary Assessment Tools.................. 121
  Sheila S. Thompson, Metropolitan State College of Denver, USA
  Annemarie Vaccaro, University of Rhode Island, USA

Chapter VIII
Effects of Assessment Results on a Writing and Thinking Rubric .................................... 135
  Teresa Flateby, University of South Florida, USA

Section II
Assessment Applications and Initiatives

Chapter IX
Assessing Outcomes in a Technical Communication Capstone ...................................... 152
  Barbara J. D’Angelo, Arizona State University, USA
  Barry Maid, Arizona State University, USA

Chapter X
Assessing the Composition Program on Our Own Terms ................................................ 167
  Sonya Borton, Philadelphia University, USA
  Alanna Frost, University of Alabama at Huntsville, USA
  Kate Warrington, Lindsey Wilson College, USA

Chapter XI
A Case Study of Instructional Delivery Formats ............................................................ 185
  Joan Aitken, Park University, USA & University of Missouri-Kansas City, USA

Chapter XII
Inverting the Remedial Mathematics Classroom with Alternative Assessment ...................... 205
  Victor W. Brunsden, Pennsylvania State University-Altoona College, USA
Chapter XIII
A Case Study of Authentic Assessment .......................................................... 213
  David A. Eubanks, Coker College, USA

Chapter XIV
Outcomes Assessment in Japanese Language Instruction .............................. 231
  P. Toyoko Kang, University of Guam, Guam
  David Gugin, University of Guam, Guam

Chapter XV
Assessing the Effectiveness of a Basic Writing Course .............................. 249
  Barika Barboza, City University of New York, USA
  Frances L. Singh, City University of New York, USA

Chapter XVI
Peer Assessment for Development of Preservice Teachers .......................... 263
  Lorraine Gilpin, Georgia Southern University, USA
  Yasar Bodur, Georgia Southern University, USA
  Kathleen Crawford, Georgia Southern University, USA

Chapter XVII
Workshops and E-Portfolios as Transformational Assessment .................... 281
  Charlotte Brammer, Samford University, USA
  Rhonda Parker, Samford University, USA

Section III
Assessing Assessment

Chapter XVIII
A Neglected Necessity in Liberal Arts Assessment: The Student as the Unit of Analysis .......... 291
  Daniel F. Chambliss, Hamilton College, USA

Chapter XIX
Redefining Writing Reality with Multi-Modal Writing and Assessment ............. 298
  Deirdre Pettipiece, University of the Sciences in Philadelphia, USA
  Timothy Ray, West Chester University of Pennsylvania, USA
  Justin Everett, University of the Sciences in Philadelphia, USA

Chapter XX
Engaging Faculty as a Strategic Choice in Assessment .................................. 317
  Sean A. McKitrick, Binghamton University, USA