Table of Contents

Foreword ........................................................................................................................................... xxv

Preface .............................................................................................................................................. xxvii

Acknowledgment ............................................................................................................................ xxxiii

Chapter I
How the Crowd Can Teach ............................................................................................................... 1
Jon Dron, Athabasca University, Canada
Terry Anderson, Athabasca University, Canada

Chapter II
Social Networking and Schools: Early Responses and Implications for Practice ......................... 18
Chris Abbott, Reader in e-Inclusion, King’s College London, UK
William Alder, Sixth Form Student, Trinity School, UK

Chapter III
Cyber-Identities and Social Life in Cyberspace ............................................................................. 27
Eleni Berki, University of Tampere, Finland
Mikko Jäkälä, University of Jyväskylä, Finland

Chapter IV
Weblogs in Higher Education .......................................................................................................... 40
Werner Beuschel, Brandenburg University of Applied Sciences, Germany

Chapter V
Social Navigation and Local Folksonomies: Technical and Design Considerations for a Mobile
Information System ......................................................................................................................... 52
Mark Bilandzic, Technische Universität München, Germany
Marcus Foth, Queensland University of Technology, Australia
Chapter XIII
Identifying New Virtual Competencies for the Digital Age: Essential Tools for Entry Level Workers

Kathryn Gow, Queensland University of Technology, Australia

Chapter XIV
Social Structures of Online Religious Communities

Jerald Hughes, University of Texas – Pan American, USA
Scott Robinson, Global Trading Group, USA

Chapter XV
Living, Working, Teaching and Learning by Social Software

Helen Keegan, University of Salford, UK
Bernard Lisewski, University of Salford, UK

Chapter XVI
Supporting Student Blogging in Higher Education

Lucinda Kerawalla, The Open University, UK
Shailey Minocha, The Open University, UK
Gill Kirkup, The Open University, UK
Gráinne Conole, The Open University, UK

Chapter XVII
Blogs as a Social Networking Tool to Build Community

Lisa Kervin, University of Wollongong, Australia
Jessica Mantei, University of Wollongong, Australia
Anthony Herrington, University of Wollongong, Australia

Chapter XVIII
A Model for Knowledge and Innovation in Online Education

Jennifer Ann Linder-VanBerschot, University of New Mexico, USA
Deborah K. LaPointe, University of New Mexico Health Sciences Center, USA

Chapter XIX
Using Social Software for Teaching and Learning in Higher Education

Petros Lameras, South East European Research Centre, Research Centre of the University of Sheffield and CITY College, Greece
Iraklis Paraskakis, South East European Research Centre, Research Centre of the University of Sheffield and CITY College, Greece
Philipa Levy, University of Sheffield, Greece
Chapter XX
The Potential of Enterprise Social Software in Integrating Exploitative and Explorative Knowledge Strategies ................................................................. 285

Dimitris Bibikas, South East European Research Centre, Greece & Research Centre of the University of Sheffield and CITY College, Greece
Iraklis Paraskakis, South East European Research Centre, Greece & Research Centre of the University of Sheffield and CITY College, Greece
Alexandros G. Psychogios, CITY College, affiliated Institution of the University of Sheffield, Greece
Ana C. Vasconcelos, The University of Sheffield, UK

Chapter XXI
Personal Knowledge Management Skills for Lifelong-Learners 2.0 ................................................................. 298

M. C. Pettenati, University of Florence, Italy
M. E. Cigognini, University of Florence, Italy
E. M. C. Guerin, University of Florence, Italy
G. R. Mangione, University of Florence, Italy

Chapter XXII
Reconceptualising Information Literacy for the Web 2.0 Environment? .................................................. 316

Sharon Markless, King’s College, London, UK
David Streatfield, Information Management Associates, UK

Chapter XXIII
Pedagogical Responses to Social Software in Universities .......................................................... 335

Catherine McLoughlin, Australian Catholic University, Australia
Mark J. W. Lee, Charles Sturt University, Australia

Chapter XXIV
Knowledge Media Tools to Foster Social Learning ........................................................................ 357

Alexandra Okada, The Open University, UK
Simon Buckingham Shum, The Open University, UK
Michelle Bachler, The Open University, UK
Eleftheria Tomadaki, The Open University, UK
Peter Scott, The Open University, UK
Alex Little, The Open University, UK
Marc Eisenstadt, The Open University, UK

Chapter XXV
A Critical Cultural Reading of “YouTube” ....................................................................................... 381

Luc Pauwels, University of Antwerp, Belgium
Patricia Hellriegel, Lessius University College, Belgium
Chapter XXVI
The Personal Research Portal ............................................................................................................ 400
Ismael Peña-López, Universitat Oberta de Catalunya, Spain

Chapter XXVII
Ambient Pedagogies, Meaningful Learning and Social Software.................................................... 415
Andrew Ravenscroft, London Metropolitan University, UK
Musbah Sagar, London Metropolitan University, UK
Enzian Baur; London Metropolitan University, UK
Peter Oriogun, American University of Nigeria, Nigeria

Chapter XXVIII
Interactivity Redefined for the Social Web ......................................................................................... 434
V. Sachdev, Middle Tennessee State University, USA
S. Nerur, University of Texas at Arlington, USA
J. T. C. Teng, University of Texas at Arlington, USA

Chapter XXIX
Transliteracy as a Unifying Perspective ............................................................................................. 448
Sue Thomas, De Montfort University, UK
Chris Joseph, De Montfort University, UK
Jess Laccetti, De Montfort University, UK
Bruce Mason, De Montfort University, UK
Simon Perril, De Montfort University, UK
Kate Pullinger, De Montfort University, UK

Chapter XXX
Bridging the Gap Between Web 2.0 and Higher Education .......................................................... 466
Martin Weller, The Open University, UK
James Dalziel, Macquarie University, Australia

Chapter XXXI
Destructive Creativity on the Social Web: Learning through Wikis in Higher Education ............... 479
Steve Wheeler, University of Plymouth, UK

Chapter XXXII
Presence in Social Networks ................................................................................................................. 493
Scott Wilson, University of Bolton, UK

Compilation of References .................................................................................................................. 512

About the Contributors ....................................................................................................................... 576

Index .................................................................................................................................................. 590