Acknowledgment

First and foremost, I want to thank the editorial board for their advice and encouragement throughout this process. I also want to thank each contributor. I have learned so much from you, as I know the readers of this text will too. I am especially thankful to the students who provided extraordinary support for this project, particularly Tianlan Wei and Dan Dao. I am grateful to each reviewer; some I hope will forgive me because they reviewed more than the promised one chapter. The review process was anchored by Dr. Alice Denham, who provided reviews, and in some cases, deep editorial advice on the bulk of the chapters.

I am also grateful to IGI Global and Mike Killian who have been hard taskmasters, but were kind enough to hang in there with me through it all, even though I did not fully realize the incredible amount of work involved.

I want to acknowledge the warm and continued support and reassurance from the members of Traditionally Black Colleges and Universities-Special Interest Group. You gave me the confidence to launch this effort and allow it to take on a life of its own.

Finally, I want to thank Ronnelle, Erica, and Nea whose support sustained me through many 3 a.m. editing sessions that never seemed to end. Thankfully, the editing and writing ended, but their love has not.

Hansel Burley
Texas Tech University, USA
June 2011