Scholars of virtual organizational behaviour, marketing, and information and communication technology — both academicians and practitioners were involved and contributed in the development of concepts and organization of the studies presented in this book. It is their enormous and relentless guidance at various stages of development of this work that pursues and confirms the highest quality of this book. This book would not have been possible without the contribution and guidance of the authors, advisors, reviewers, and our colleagues. We take this unique opportunity to convey our regards and gratitude to those scholars.

We must bestow our earnest regards to the staff at IGI Global who gave this opportunity to publish this book and supported the entire lengthy process of developing the book. The editors would like to thank the people at IGI Global, namely: Kristin M. Klinger for handling the book proposal, Jan Travlers for managing the contract, and Joel A. Gamon for managing this project, especially for answering queries and keeping the project on schedule with highest responsiveness. In all aspects, we are highly obligated to reviewers for their useful and constructive comments to improvise the quality of all the book chapters. We are highly grateful to Dr. Professor Ibrahim Kushchu for providing the foreword.

We bestow our unbounded gratitude and deepest sense of respect to our families whose blessing, concerted efforts, constant encouragement, and wholehearted co-operation enabled us to reach this milestone.
