Advances in the Economics of Information Systems

Table of Contents

Preface .................................................................................................. vi

Chapter I
Surviving a Standards War: Lessons Learned from the Life and Death of DIVX ................................................................. 1
    David Dranove, Northwestern University, USA
    Neil Gandal, Tel Aviv University, Israel, and Michigan State University, USA

Chapter II
Information Transparency Hypothesis: Economic Implications of Information Transparency in Electronic Markets ....................... 15
    Kevin Zhu, University of California at Irvine, USA

Chapter III
Partnering for Perfection: An Economics Perspective on B2B Electronic Market Strategic Alliances ............................................. 43
    Qizhi Dai, Drexel University, USA
    Robert J. Kauffman, University of Minnesota, USA

Chapter IV
Transparency Strategy in Internet-Based Selling .................................. 80
    Nelson Granados, University of Minnesota, USA
    Alok Gupta, University of Minnesota, USA
    Robert J. Kauffman, University of Minnesota, USA
Chapter V
Structure Evolution of B2B Enterprise Networks ......................... 113
  Kexin Zhao, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, USA
  Michael J. Shaw, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, USA
  Mu Xia, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, USA
  Chandrasekar Subramaniam, University of North Carolina at Charlotte, USA

Chapter VI
Perceived Risk and Escrow Adoption in Online Consumer-to-Consumer Auction Markets: An Economic Analysis ................................................................. 132
  Xiaorui Hu, Saint Louis University, USA
  Zhangxi Lin, Texas Tech University, USA
  Han Zhang, Georgia Institute of Technology, USA

Chapter VII
Inter-Firm Collaboration and Electronic Business: Effects on Profitability in Finland ................................................................. 152
  Pekka Tsupari, TT, Confederation of Finnish Industry & Employers, Finland
  Petri Rouvinen, ETLA, The Research Institute of the Finnish Economy, Finland

Chapter VIII
Pay Now or Later? The Impact of Temporal Separation of Payments and Consumption on Consumer Payment Preferences ........................................... 172
  Ranjan Dutta, University of Texas at Austin, USA
  Jonathan J. Koehler, University of Texas at Austin, USA

Chapter IX
Economics of Immediate Gratification in Mobile Commerce .......... 206
  Kerem Tomak, University of Texas at Austin, USA

Glossary ............................................................................................. 227

About the Authors.............................................................................. 237

Index ................................................................................................... 243