Table of Contents

Foreword

Preface

Section 1
Social Media and Public Service: What is the Definition and Potential of Web 2.0?

Chapter 1
Communication and Collaboration in a Web 2.0 World

F. Dianne Lux Wigand, University of Arkansas at Little Rock, USA

Chapter 2
Social Media and Voter Participation

Mariah Kraner, Portland State University, USA

Chapter 3
Social Media vs. the Public Sector: Irresistible Force, Immovable Object

Toby Fyfe, University of Ottawa, Canada

Paul Crookall, Trent University, Canada

Section 2
Current Practice: How is Web 2.0 Used?

Chapter 4
Measuring the Impact of Social Media use in the Public Sector

Inez Mergel, Syracuse University, USA

Chapter 5
US Cities and Social Networking: A Focus on City Websites and Mayors

Alana Northrop, California State University Fullerton, USA
Chapter 6
Local Governments and Social Networking: Do You Speak Our Language? ................................. 84
  Gerald A. Merwin Jr., Valdosta State University, USA
  J. Scott McDonald, University of Texas El Paso, USA
  Keith A. Merwin, Merwin & Associates, USA
  Maureen McDonald, WDE Consulting, USA
  John R. Bennett Jr., Valdosta State University, USA

Chapter 7
eGovernance2.0: Implications of Social Computing on Public Services ........................................ 99
  Gianluca Misuraca, European Commission & Joint Research Centre, Institute for Prospective
  Technological Studies, Spain

Chapter 8
Assessment of Web 2.0 Applications Employed by Human Resource
Departments in U.S. Cities .................................................................................................................. 122
  Maureen McDonald, WDE Consulting, USA
  J. Scott McDonald, University of Texas El Paso, USA
  Gerald A. Merwin Jr., Valdosta State University, USA
  Keith A. Merwin, Merwin & Associates, USA
  Mathew Richardson, University of Texas El Paso, USA

Chapter 9
Using Web 2.0 as a Community Policing Strategy: An Examination of the United States Municipal Police Departments .......................................................................................... 139
  Matthew A. Jones, Portland State University, USA
  Melchor C. de Guzman, SUNY Brockport, USA
  Korni Swaroop Kumar, SUNY Brockport, USA

Chapter 10
Using Web 2.0 to Reconceptualize E-Government: The Case for GovLoop .................................. 153
  Leila Sadeghi, Kean University, USA
  Steve Ressler, GovLoop, USA
  Andrew Krzmarzick, GovLoop, USA

Chapter 11
WikiLeaks and the Changing Forms of Information Politics in the “Network Society” .................. 167
  Chindu Sreedharan, Bournemouth University, UK
  Einar Thorsen, Bournemouth University, UK
  Stuart Allan, Bournemouth University, UK

Chapter 12
Open Source, Crowdsourcing, and Public Engagement .............................................................. 181
  Helen K. Liu, University of Hong Kong, China
Section 3
Continuing Issue:
Where is Web 2.0 Headed?

Chapter 13
Web 2.0 and Government Transformation: How E-Government and Social Media Contribute to Innovation in Public Services ................................................................. 201
  Jon E. Glasco, Glasco Clark Associates, Spain

Chapter 14
Web 2.0: Harnessing Democracy’s Potential ........................................................................ 223
  Pedro Isaías, Portuguese Open University, Portugal
  Sara Pífano, Information Society Research Lab, Portugal
  Paula Miranda, Polytechnic Institute of Setúbal, Portugal

Chapter 15
From E-Government to E-Governance: Exploring the Transformational Potential of Web 2.0 in State and Local Governments ................................................................. 237
  Kathryn Kloby, Monmouth University, USA

Chapter 16
Social Media and Web 2.0 for Rethinking E-Government Maturity Models ........................... 250
  B. Joon Kim, Indiana University-Purdue University Fort Wayne, USA
  Savannah Robinson, Indiana University-Purdue University Fort Wayne, USA

Chapter 17
The Paradox of the Interactive Web in the U.S. Public Sector ............................................. 266
  Ines A. Mergel, Syracuse University, USA
  Charles M. Schweik, University of Massachusetts, USA

Compilation of References ........................................................................................................ 290

About the Contributors ............................................................................................................ 329

Index ...................................................................................................................................... 336