Table of Contents

Foreword...................................................................................................................................................... xiv

Preface.......................................................................................................................................................... xvii

Acknowledgment............................................................................................................................................ xxi

Section 1
Technologies and Strategies

Chapter 1
Investigating eResearch: Collaboration Practices and Future Challenges.............................................. 1
  Lina Markauskaite, University of Sydney, Australia
  Mary Anne Kennan, Charles Sturt University, Australia
  Jim Richardson, University of Sydney, Australia
  Anindito Aditomo, University of Sydney, Australia
  Leonie Hellmers, Intersect Australia Ltd., Australia

Chapter 2
The Web as a Platform for e-Research in the Social and Behavioral Sciences ........................................ 34
  Pablo Garaizar, Universidad de Deusto, Spain
  Miguel A. Vadillo, Universidad de Deusto, Spain
  Diego López-de-Ipiña, Universidad de Deusto, Spain
  Helena Matute, Universidad de Deusto, Spain

Chapter 3
E-Research Methodology.......................................................................................................................... 62
  Vahid Khatibi, University of Tehran, Iran
  Gholam Ali Montazer, Tarbiat Modares University, Iran

Chapter 4
Collaborative and Distributed e-Research Environment for Supporting Scientific
Research and the Education Process ........................................................................................................ 82
  Dukyun Nam, Korea Institute of Science and Technology Information, Republic of Korea
  Junehawk Lee, Korea Institute of Science and Technology Information, Republic of Korea
  Kum Won Cho, Korea Institute of Science and Technology Information, Republic of Korea
Chapter 5
Connecting and Enabling the Humanities: e-Research in the Border Zone ................................................. 95
Paul Longley Arthur, Australian National University, Australia

Chapter 6
Data Sharing in CSCR: Towards In-Depth Long Term Collaboration .......................................................... 111
Christophe Reffay, Ecole Normale Supérieure de Cachan, France & Ecole Normale Supérieure de Lyon, France
Gregory Dyke, Carnegie Mellon University, USA
Marie-Laure Betbeder, Université de Franche-Comté, France

Chapter 7
Artificial Intelligence Supported Non-Verbal Communication for Enriched Collaboration in Distributed E-Research Environments .............................................................. 135
Paul Smith, National University of Ireland – Galway, Ireland
Sam Redfern, National University of Ireland – Galway, Ireland

Chapter 8
An Ontological Structure for Gathering and Sharing Knowledge among Scientists through Experiment Modeling .......................................................................................................................... 165
Luis Casillas, University of Guadalajara, Mexico
Thanasis Daradoumis, University of the Aegean, Greece & Open University of Catalonia, Spain

Section 2
Applications and Case Studies

Chapter 9
CAWriter: A Computer Supported Collaborative Tool to Support Doctoral Candidates Academic Writing – A Pedagogical and Human-Computer Interaction Perspective .................................................. 181
Jake Rowan Byrne, Trinity College Dublin, Ireland
Brendan Tangney, Trinity College Dublin, Ireland

Chapter 10
Collaboration within Multinational Learning Communities: The Case of the Virtual Community Collaborative Space for Sciences Education European Project ........................................ 206
Maria Kordaki, University of the Aegean, Greece
Gabriel Gorgiu, Valahia University Targoviste, Romania
Mihai Bîzoi, Valahia University Targoviste, Romania
Adina Glava, Babes-Bolyai University, Romania
Chapter 11
E-Mentoring: Issues and Experiences in Starting e-Research Collaborations in Graduate Programs.................................................................227
   Javier Faulin, Public University of Navarre, Spain
   Angel A. Juan, Open University of Catalonia, Spain
   Fernando Lera, Public University of Navarre, Spain
   Barry B. Barrios, Northwestern University, USA
   Alex Forcada, University of Zaragoza, Spain

Chapter 12
Addressing Conflicting Cognitive Models in Collaborative E-Research: A Case Study in Exploration Geophysics..........................................................................................................................247
   Paolo Diviacco, Istituto Nazionale di Oceanografia e di Geofisica Sperimentale, Italy

Chapter 13
Effects of the Drewlite CSCL Platform on Students’ Learning Outcomes.................................................................276
   Omid Noroozi, Wageningen University, The Netherlands
   Harm Biemans, Wageningen University, The Netherlands
   Maria C. Bussena, Wageningen University, The Netherlands
   Martin Mulder, Wageningen University, The Netherlands
   Vitaliy Popov, Wageningen University, The Netherlands
   Mohammad Chizari, Tarbiat Modares University, Iran

Chapter 14
Social Network Analysis Tools to Understand How Research Groups Interact: A Case Study.................................................................290
   Mayte López-Ferrer, Polytechnic University of Valencia, Spain

Chapter 15
Collaborative and Distributed Innovation and Research in Business Activity.................................................................310
   Rob Allan, Science and Technology Facilities Council, UK
   Rob Crouchley, Lancaster University, UK
   Alastair Robertson, Lancaster University, UK

Chapter 16
E-Research Collaboration of International Scope in Social and Political Sciences: Scale and Complexity Linkage with the Requirement of Physical Encounters.................................................................330
   Mayo Fuster Morell, Berkman Center for Internet & Society, Harvard University, USA

Compilation of References .................................................................................................................................347

About the Contributors .........................................................................................................................................383

Index ..................................................................................................................................................................394