This book is dedicated to the four individuals who helped me improve my writing most. My mother, Rox-Ellene Greenlaw, always took a great interest in my writing and always shared her time and energy with me. Whenever I asked her to proofread a manuscript or to make suggestions, she did and her comments always taught me something new and worthwhile. My mom possessed a remarkable command of the English language and an amazing eye for details. Then there is my good friend Dr. Adrian Plante my high-school English teacher. Adrian too took a great interest in my writing, and I was lucky to have him as a mentor during my formative years of study. We read over 50 classics together, and he always provided deep insights during our one-on-one discussions of these works. And, Hugh Willoughby who copyedited several of my books gave me perspective on many topics relating to language. I am sure several grammatical errors remain in this work that Hugh would cringe at, and I apologize to him for not being a better student. Dr. Larry Ruzzo my thesis advisor helped me tremendous with my technical writing via example. He never criticized me but simply showed me how to improve my work. These four individuals inspired me to push forward and complete this manuscript. Whatever is valuable and worthy in this work, I dedicate to them.
