Table of Contents

Preface ................................................................................................................................................... xvi

Section 1
Organizational Issues

Chapter 1
Business Intelligence and Organizational Decisions ................................................................. 1
Thomas H. Davenport, Babson College, USA

Chapter 2
Business Plus Intelligence Plus Technology Equals Business Intelligence................................. 13
Ira Yermish, Saint Joseph’s University, USA
Virginia Miori, Saint Joseph’s University, USA
John Yi, Saint Joseph’s University, USA
Rashmi Malhotra, Saint Joseph’s University, USA
Ronald Klimberg, Saint Joseph’s University, USA

Chapter 3
Business Intelligence in the Bayou: Recovering Costs in the Wake of Hurricane Katrina ............... 29
Gregory Smith, Xavier University, USA
Thilini Ariyachandra, Xavier University, USA
Mark Frolick, Xavier University, USA

Chapter 4
The Role of Culture in Business Intelligence .................................................................................... 38
Jore Park, IndaSea, Inc., USA
Wylci Fables, IndaSea, Inc., USA
Kevin R. Parker, Idaho State University, USA
Philip S. Nitse, Idaho State University, USA
Chapter 5
What is Business Intelligence? ................................................................. 52
Éric Foley, Université de Sherbrooke, Canada
Manon G. Guillemette, Université de Sherbrooke, Canada

Chapter 6
The Importance of Process Thinking in Business Intelligence................... 76
Olivera Marjanovic, University of Sydney, Australia

Section 2
Analytic Issues

Chapter 7
Strategies for Document Management...................................................... 96
Karen Corral, Boise State University, USA
David Schuff, Temple University, USA
Gregory Schymik, Arizona State University, USA
Robert St. Louis, Arizona State University, USA

Chapter 8
The Current State of Analytics in the Corporation: The View from Industry Leaders.................. 115
Thomas Coghlan, Villanova University, USA
George Diehl, Villanova University, USA
Eric Karson, Villanova University, USA
Matthew Liberatore, Villanova University, USA
Wenhong Luo, Villanova University, USA
Robert Nydick, Villanova University, USA
Bruce Pollack-Johnson, Villanova University, USA
William Wagner, Villanova University, USA

Chapter 9
Application of Triplet Notation and Dynamic Programming to Single-Line, Multi-Product Dairy Production Scheduling .............................................. 121
Virginia M. Miori, St. Joseph’s University, USA
Brian Segulin, RoviSys Co., USA

Chapter 10
Data Mining for Health Care Professionals: MBA Course Projects Resulting in Hospital Improvements................................................................. 133
Alan Olinsky, Bryant University, USA
Phyllis A. Schumacher, Bryant University, USA
Chapter 11
Data-Driven Decision Making for New Drugs: A Collaborative Learning Experience .................. 144
George P. Sillup, Saint Joseph’s University, USA
Ronald K. Klimberg, Saint Joseph’s University, USA
David P. McSweeney, Healthcare Data Management, Inc., USA

Chapter 12
Towards Private-Public Research Partnerships Combining Rigor and Relevance in DWH/BI Research: The Competence Center Approach.......................................................... 163
Anne Cleven, University of St. Gallen, Switzerland
Robert Winter, University of St. Gallen, Switzerland
Felix Wortmann, University of St. Gallen, Switzerland

Chapter 13
Improving Business Intelligence: The Six Sigma Way................................................................. 176
Dorothy Miller, Industry Consultant in Business Intelligence, USA

Section 3
Technology Issues

Chapter 14
The BI-Based Organization ........................................................................................................... 193
Barbara Wixom, University of Virginia, USA
Hugh Watson, University of Georgia, USA

Chapter 15
Do Users Go Both Ways? BI User Profiles Fit BI Tools .............................................................. 209
Hamid Nemati, University of North Carolina at Greensboro, USA
Brad Earle, KB Earle Associates, USA
Satya Arekapudi, CommScope, Inc., USA
Sanjay Mamani, Republic Mortgage Insurance Company, USA

Chapter 16
Enterprise Information System and Data Mining ......................................................................... 228
Kenneth D. Lawrence, New Jersey Institute of Technology, USA
Dinesh R. Pai, Penn State Lehigh Valley, USA
Ronald Klimberg, Saint Joseph’s University, USA
Sheila M. Lawrence, Rutgers University, USA
Chapter 17
Historical Data Analysis through Data Mining from an Outsourcing Perspective:
The Three-Phases Model .................................................................236

Arjen Vleugel, Utrecht University, The Netherlands
Marco Spruit, Utrecht University, The Netherlands
Anton van Daal, In Summa, The Netherlands

Chapter 18
Data Warehousing Requirements Collection and Definition: Analysis of a Failure...........261

Nenad Jukic, Loyola University Chicago, USA
Miguel Velasco, University of Minnesota, USA

Chapter 19
Business Intelligence 2.0: The eXtensible Markup Language as Strategic Enabler............272

Rubén A. Mendoza, Saint Joseph’s University, USA

Compilation of References .............................................................................................................286

About the Contributors ..................................................................................................................309

Index ............................................................................................................................................316