Acknowledgment

This book was first inspired by my previous colleague, Dr. Yogesh Dwivedi from School of Business & Economics in Swansea University, who has many experiences in editing books. I was inspired to edit a book on virtual communities while working with him and would like to give my first thanks to him.

There are many others without whom this book could not happen. They are all authors who contributed to this book, the editorial board members who have agreed to assistant me to distribute the information about this book, and the reviewers who have reviewed each chapter. To list name of those reviewers, they are Mamata Bhandar from National University of Singapore, Thierry Nabeth from Insead The Business School for the World, Kathryn Ruth Stam from Syracuse University, Rik Crutzen from Maastricht University/CAPHRI, Trudy Barber from University of Portsmouth, Mei Wu from University of Macau, Sunghee Shin from Queens College CUNY, Stephan Humer from University of the Arts Berlin, Kam Hou Vat from University of Macau, Jonathan Bishop from The Centre for Research into Online Communities and E-Learning Systems, Rivera Gonzalez from Sheffield University, Kevin Y. Wang from Butler University, Antonella Mascio from Università di Bologna, Francesca Comunello from Sapienza Università di Roma, Michael Baron from Baron Consulting, Jacquelyn Erdman from US Green Building Council, Jocelyn Williams from Unitec New Zealand, Kim Ballard from University of Minnesota, and Jonathan Marshall from University of Technology Sydney. Rik Crutzen has to be thanked again for encouraging me during the editing process and writing the Foreword of the book.

Besides all people, I would like to give special thanks to several professional Listservs where I met most of the authors and reviewers of this book. I will be attached to Air Listserv (http://listserv.aoir.org/listinfo.cgi/air-l-aoir.org) after this book. The AISworld Listserv (http://www.aisnet.org/AIS_Lists/publiclists.aspx) also made a big contribution to the development of this book. I have been nurtured by these two communities during the editorial process. The other Listserv worth mentioning is IRMA (http://www.irma-international.org/irma-l/).

Finally, I would like to thank all the managing editors from IGI who have given me enough patience while editing this book. Special thanks go to Joel Gamon, the final managing editor who has given me enough patience and time.
