Inter-Organizational Trust in Business-to-Business E-Commerce

Table of Contents

- Preface ..............................................................................................................vii
- Chapter I. Introduction ..................................................................................1
  - Background of Inter-Organizational Trust in E-Commerce ..............2
    - Significant Prior Research and Research Rationale .....................4
    - Previous Research on E-Commerce Adoption ...............................5
    - E-Commerce History and Growth ..................................................6
      - Factors that Drive E-Commerce Adoption ............................ 7
      - Factors that Inhibit E-Commerce Adoption .......................... 8
- Chapter II. Initial Exploratory Study ...........................................................12
  - Respondent Profile ..................................................................................13
  - Key Findings of the Exploratory Survey ..............................................14
  - Potential Benefits vs. Achieved Benefits ........................................ 15
  - Potential Barriers and Risks ..................................................................16
  - Comparisons between Europe and Australia/New Zealand (ANZ)...17
  - Characteristics of E-Commerce Leaders ......................................... 19
  - Recommendations and Lessons Learned ....................................... 20
  - The Future of E-Commerce in Australia and New Zealand ..............21
- Chapter III. Literature Review ....................................................................22
  - The Need for Inter-Organizational Trust ..............................................23
  - Trading Partner Trust ..............................................................................25
    - Trading Partner Trust Characteristics .......................................... 27
    - Characteristics in the Definition of Trust ...................................... 29
    - Trust Building Mechanisms in Business Relationships .............. 30
    - Types of Trading Partner Trust ..................................................... 40
  - Perceived Benefits of E-Commerce ..................................................... 43
  - Perceived Risks of E-Commerce .......................................................... 48
  - Technology Trust Mechanisms in E-Commerce ................................52
  - Outcomes of E-Commerce Participation ........................................... 55
Perspectives of Organizational, Economic, and Political Theories on Inter-Organizational Trust ............................................................... 56

Inter-Organizational-Relationship Theory and Trust
Perspective ................................................................................ 57
Transaction-Cost Economics Theory and Trust Perspective .... 58
Resource Dependency Theory and Trust Perspective .......... 60
Evolution of Inter-Organizational Systems to Inter-Organizational Trust ...................................................... 61

Conceptual Model of Inter-Organizational Trust in E-Commerce Participation ....................................................................................... 63

The Relationship between Trading Partner Trust and
Perceived Benefits of E-Commerce ........................................... 64
The Relationship between Trading Partner Trust and Perceived Risks of E-Commerce .................................................. 66
The Relationship between Technology Trust Mechanisms in E-Commerce and Perceived Benefits of E-Commerce .......... 67
The Relationship between Technology Trust Mechanisms in E-Commerce and Perceived Risks of E-Commerce ............... 68
The Relationship between Perceived Benefits and Participation in E-Commerce .......................................................... 69
The Relationship between Perceived Risks and Participation in E-Commerce .......................................................... 69

Chapter IV. Research Method ..................................................................... 71

Research Methods in Information Systems .......................................... 71
Quantitative and Qualitative Research Approaches ........................... 73
Justification of a Case Study Research Method .................................. 75
Multiple Case Studies ............................................................................. 77
Case Study Research Design ................................................................. 77
Sampling .................................................................................................. 79
Size of Research Sample ........................................................................ 81
Sampling Procedures (Choice of Organizations or Cases) ...... 81
Data Collection ........................................................................................ 83
Ensuring the Validity of Data ............................................................. 84
Instrumentation of the Conceptual Model ............................................ 88
Data Analysis .......................................................................................... 89

Chapter V. Findings and Discussion ............................................................ 91

Background of the Uni-directional Dyads ............................................. 91
Uni-directional Dyad 1: NZ Customs (Bi-directional Dyad A) .......................................................... 91
Uni-directional Dyad 2: Electronic Commerce Network Ltd (Bi-directional Dyad A) .......................................................... 93