Table of Contents

Preface ................................................................................................................................................ xiv

Section 1
Enterprise Resource Planning

Chapter 1
Enterprise Systems Outsourcing “Behind the Curtain”: A Case Study Showing How Rational and Institutional Explanations Coexist and Complement Each Other  .......................................................... 1
   Per Svejvig, Aarhus School of Business, Denmark
   Jan Pries-Heje, Roskilde University, Denmark

Chapter 2
The Influence of Organisational Size, Internal IT Capabilities, and Competitive and Vendor Pressures on ERP Adoption in SMEs ................................................................................................................. 19
   Cliff Cartman, Manchester Metropolitan University, UK
   Angel Salazar, Manchester Metropolitan University, UK

Chapter 3
Improving Internal Supply Chain Collaboration by Increasing Information-Processing Capacity: The Role of Enterprise Information Systems ............................................................................................................. 44
   Ana L. Rosado Feger, Ohio University College of Business, USA

Chapter 4
   Magdy Abdel-Kader, University of Bedfordshire, UK
   Thu Phuong Nguyen, TECHCOM Bank, Vietnam

Chapter 5
A Success Model for Enterprise Resource Planning Adoption to Improve Financial Performance in Vietnam’s Equitized State Owned Enterprises .................................................................................. 81
   Long Pham, New Mexico State University, USA
   Jeffrey E. Teich, New Mexico State University, USA
Chapter 6

Mohamed A. Nour, University of Sharjah, UAE
Samar Mouakket, University of Sharjah, UAE

Chapter 7
Strategic Management of Network Resources: A Case Study of an ERP Ecosystem ...................... 114

Michelle Antero, Copenhagen Business School, Denmark
Philip Holst Riis, Copenhagen Business School, Denmark

Chapter 8
Collaborative Planning of ERP Implementation: A Design Science Approach ......................... 130

Babak Sohrabi, University of Tehran, Iran
Iman Raeesi Vanani, University of Tehran, Iran

Chapter 9
A McKinsey 7S Model-Based Framework for ERP Readiness Assessment ............................. 141

Payam Hanafizadeh, Allemeh Tabataba’i University of Tehran, Iran
Ahad Zare Ravasan, Allemeh Tabataba’i University of Tehran, Iran

Chapter 10
Ontology-Based Knowledge Management for Enterprise Systems ........................................ 184

Mohammad Nazir Ahmad, Universiti Teknologi Malaysia, Malaysia
Nor Hidayati Zakaria, Universiti Teknologi Malaysia, Malaysia
Darshana Sedera, Queensland University of Technology, Australia

Section 2
Enterprise Productivity Planning

Chapter 11
Linking the Impact of IT Investments to Productivity and Profitability .................................. 214

Mohan P. Rao, University of Louisiana at Lafayette, USA
Purnendu Mandal, Lamar University, USA

Chapter 12
An Analytical Model to Measure IS-Enabled Organizational Effectiveness ............................. 230

Chun Meng Tang, Multimedia University, Malaysia
Govindan Marthandan, Multimedia University, Malaysia
Chapter 13
A Maturity Model of Strategic Information Systems Planning (SISP): A Comprehensive Conceptualization

Zijad Pita, RMIT University, Australia
France Cheong, RMIT University, Australia
Brian Corbitt, RMIT University, Australia

Chapter 14
A Maturity Model of Strategic Information Systems Planning (SISP): An Empirical Evaluation Using the Analytic Network Process

Zijad Pita, RMIT University, Australia
France Cheong, RMIT University, Australia
Brian Corbitt, RMIT University, Australia

Chapter 15
Sustainable Competitive Advantage in E-Commerce and the Role of the Enterprise System

Petra Schubert, Copenhagen Business School, Denmark
Susan P. Williams, University of Koblenz-Landau, Germany
Ralf Woelfle, University of Applied Sciences Northwestern Switzerland, Switzerland

Chapter 16
Is it Really so ‘Strategic’? Motivational Factors for Investing in Enterprise Systems: A Survey

Przemyslaw Lech, University of Gdańsk, Poland

Compilation of References

About the Contributors

Index