Acknowledgment

The editors of this volume extend their profound gratitude to the reviewers, in light of their busy schedule, for their generosity in providing useful technical comments, which, on adherence by the authors, subsequently have definitely enhanced the academic standing of this edition. It goes without saying that but for the effort rendered by the authors for their positive role starting from submission of their valuable findings in this volume up to taking the pain for incorporating the technical comments as offered by the learned reviewers in their final version, more so because, the authors could find this intended volume useful to ventilate their recent works.

The editors also like to take this opportunity to express their sincere gratitude to IGI Global for considering the edited book proposal academically worthy and publishing it for the intended readership. But for them, this effort would have no meaning altogether.

Last but not the least, the editors feel strongly inclined to express gratitude to their respective places of work in general and the departments they respectively belong to, in particular but for which, they believe that the present endeavor could not have taken such a successful one.