Acknowledgment

From signing the book contract in September 2010 to submitting the full manuscript in October 2012, the book took 2 years to complete, with 6 months of break in between due to my personal health issues. Some of the chapter authors dropped out due to natural disasters, such as the 2011 Christchurch Earthquake (BBC, 2011) in New Zealand, and political unrest, such as the Egyptian revolution (New York Times, 2012) in Cairo. Some of the chapter authors managed to complete the draft on time under unfavorable conditions, such as a serious power outage (Slate, 2012). This is my first book, and I completed it right after finishing my PhD dissertation, which felt like completing a marathon. The editing process was a tremendous learning experience. From sending out the call for chapters, coordinating peer reviews, to copy-editing, everything was new to me. I would like to thank the 21 contributing authors and 19 peer-reviewers from 14 countries and 6 continents, and the IGI Global editorial team for making this possible. I would like to thank my colleague Joshua James and my PhD supervisor Prof. Joe Carthy for supporting me in this project. I would like to thank Prof. Gene Spafford, Dr. Fred Cohen, Mr. Jagdish Singh, and Dr. Barbara Endicott-Popovsky for encouraging me throughout this process.

Finally, I want to thank Mom, Dad, Grandpa, and Auntie for understanding me for being always busy.
