Table of Contents

Foreword..........................................................................................................................................xix

Preface................................................................................................................................................xxi

Section 1
Teaching with Commercial Games

Chapter 1
“Come Fly with Us”: Playing with Girlhood in the World of Pixie Hollow ........ 1
   Maria Velazquez, University of Maryland, USA

Chapter 2
Using MMORPGs in Classrooms: Stories vs. Teachers as Sources of Motivation .................................................. 15
   Mete Akcaoglu, Michigan State University, USA

Chapter 3
Are Wii Having Fun Yet? ................................................................. 25
   Christina Badman, Sacred Heart Catholic School, USA
   Matthew DeNote, Espiritu Santo Catholic School, USA

Chapter 4
Beyond Hidden Bodies and Lost Pigs: Student Perceptions of Foreign Language Learning with Interactive Fiction.......................... 50
   Joe Pereira, British Council, Portugal
Section 2
Teaching with Educational Games

Chapter 5
Civilization IV in 7th Grade Social Studies: Motivating and Enriching Student Learning with Constructivism, Content standards, and 21st Century Skills .......................................................... 82
   Solomon Senrick, American School of Bombay, India

Chapter 6
QRienteering: Mobilising the M-Learner with Affordable Learning Games for Campus Inductions .................................................. 97
   Christopher Horne, Forth Valley College, UK

Chapter 7
Enhancing Nutritional Learning Outcomes within a Simulation and Pervasive Game-Based Strategy .......................................... 119
   Mark McMahon, Edith Cowan University, Australia

Chapter 8
“Sell Your Bargains” or Playing a Mixed-Reality Game to Spice-Up Teaching in Higher Education ............................................. 131
   Chrissi Nerantzi, University of Salford, UK

Section 3
Designing Games for Learning

Chapter 9
Medicina: Methods, Models, Strategies .................................................. 147
   Amanda Müller, Flinders University, Australia
   Gregory Mathews, Flinders University, Australia
Chapter 10
Strategies for Effective Digital Games Development and Implementation...... 168
T. Lim, Heriot-Watt University, UK
S. Louchart, Heriot-Watt University, UK
N. Suttie, Heriot-Watt University, UK
J.M. Ritchie, Heriot-Watt University, UK
R.S. Aylett, Heriot-Watt University, UK
I. A. Stănescu, “Carol I” National Defense University, Romania
I. Roceanu, “Carol I” National Defense University, Romania
I. Martinez-Ortiz, Universidad Complutense de Madrid, Spain
P. Moreno-Ger, Universidad Complutense de Madrid, Spain

Chapter 11
Learning and Teaching as Communicative Actions: Broken Window as a
Model of Transmedia Game Learning ............................................................... 199
Scott J. Warren, University of North Texas, USA
Anjum Najmi, University of North Texas, USA

Section 4
Learning through Game Design

Chapter 12
Get Your Head in the Game: Digital Game-Based Learning with Game
Maker ................................................................. 228
Brian Herrig, Canon-McMillan School District, USA

Chapter 13
Elements of Game Design: Developing a Meaningful Game Design
Curriculum for the Classroom ................................................................. 240
Danielle Herro, Clemson University, USA

Chapter 14
Game-Making in a Fourth Grade Art Classroom Using Gamestar
Mechanic ................................................................. 256
Michelle Aubrecht, Ohio State University, USA

Chapter 15
Using Game Design as a Means to Make Computer Science Accessible to Adolescents ............................................................................... 279
Roxana Hadad, Northeastern Illinois University, USA
Section 5
Games for Teacher Education

Chapter 16
3D GameLab: Quest-Based Pre-Service Teacher Education .......................... 302
Chris Haskell, Boise State University, USA

Chapter 17
Preparing Pre-Service Teachers for Game-Based Learning in Schools .......... 341
Soojeong Lee, Kyungnam University, South Korea

Chapter 18
Death in Rome: Using an Online Game for Inquiry-Based Learning in a Pre-Service Teacher Training Course .......................................................... 364
Shannon Kennedy-Clark, Australian Catholic University, Australia
Vilma Galstaun, University of Sydney, Australia
Kate Anderson, University of Sydney, Australia

Section 6
Game-Based Learning in Practice

Chapter 19
Games, Models, and Simulations in the Classroom: Designing for Epistemic Activities .............................................................. 384
Terence C. Ahern, West Virginia University, USA
Angela Dowling, West Virginia University, USA

Chapter 20
The Role of Animations and Manipulatives in Supporting Learning and Communication in Mathematics Classrooms ........................................ 400
Lida J. Uribe-Flórez, New Mexico State University, USA
Jesus Trespalacios, New Mexico State University, USA

Chapter 21
It’s All in How You Play the Game: Increasing the Impact of Gameplay in Classrooms .................................................................................. 411
Shani Reid, ICF International, USA
Helene Jennings, ICF International, USA
Scot Osterweil, The Massachusetts Institute of Technology, USA
Chapter 22
Challenges of Introducing Serious Games and Virtual Worlds in Educational Curriculum

C. Ribeiro, Instituto Superior Técnico, Technical University of Lisbon, Portugal
J. Pereira, Instituto Superior Técnico, Technical University of Lisbon, Portugal
C. Calado, Akademia, Portugal
C. Ferreira, Akademia, Portugal

Section 7
Researching Games and Learning

Chapter 23
Serious Games for Reflective Learning: Experiences from the MIRROR Project

L. Pannese, imaginary srl, Italy
M. Prilla, imaginary srl, Italy
A. Ascolese, imaginary srl, Italy
D. Morosini, imaginary srl, Italy

Chapter 24
Evaluating Games in Classrooms: A Case Study with DOGometry

Günter Wallner, University of Applied Arts Vienna, Institute of Art & Technology, Austria
Simone Kriglstein, University of Vienna, Faculty of Computer Science, Austria
Johannes Biba, University College of Teacher Education Vienna/Krems, Austria

Chapter 25
Learning with the Support of a Digital Game in the Introduction to Finance Class: Analysis of the Students’ Perception of the Game’s Ease of Use and Usefulness

M. Romero, ESADE Law & Business School, Spain
M. Usart, ESADE Law & Business School, Spain
Chapter 26
Racing Academy: A Case Study of a Digital Game for Supporting Students Learning of Physics and Engineering .................................................. 509

Richard Joiner, University of Bath, UK
Ioanna Iacovides, University College London, UK
Jos Darling, University of Bath, UK
Andy Diament, Penwith Further Education College, UK
Ben Drew, University of West of England, UK
John Duddley, Barnfield Further Education College, UK
Martin Owen, Medrus, UK
Carl Gavin, Manchester Business School, UK

Compilation of References ............................................................................. 524

About the Contributors .................................................................................... 571

Index................................................................................................................... 587