The editors would like to acknowledge the assistance of all involved in the preparation of this book without whose support the project could not have been successfully completed. This preparation included collation, review, and modification of the submitted chapters. In addition, a special note of thanks is extended to all the staff of Idea Group Inc., whose contributions throughout the entire process from the genesis of the idea of the IT Skills Portfolio to the final publication have been incalculable.

Most of the authors of the chapters also served as referees for articles written by other authors. Thanks go to all who provided constructive and comprehensive reviews. Some reviewers need to be mentioned because their reviews set such high standards. Reviewers who provided the most inclusive and insightful comments include: John E. Anderson of East Carolina University, Susy S. Chan of DePaul University, Elizabeth Lahey formerly of the Computing Technology Industry Association, Ryutaro Manabe of Bunkyo University, Cheryl Maranto of Marquette University, Abdulrahman A. Mirza of King Saud University, Paul H. Schwager of East Carolina University, Yoko Takeda of Yokohama National University, and Diana J. Wong-MingJi of Eastern Michigan University.

We especially want to give heartfelt thanks to the publishing team at Idea Group Inc. Michele Rossi gave us valuable advice on the publishing process. Jan Travers helped us in keeping progress on track. Mehdi Khosrow-Pour graciously extended an invitation to write this book.
We also want to thank our families for their unwavering support throughout this project. In particular, we want to thank J.J. Gata who was unfailing in his ability to cheer us with his charm and help us with his insights on the essentials.
