We would like to convey our gratitude and thankfulness to the thirty three authors who contributed nineteen cases to this book. The authors revised their cases many times until they met the reviewers’ comments and the publisher’s format. Without the authors’ cooperation and hard work, this publication of Cases on Management and Organizational Behavior in an Arab Context would not have been possible. Many of the authors were involved in the reviewing process of other cases, which helped them get familiar with other styles of writing.

Our sincere appreciation goes to the reviewers (non-authors) who assisted in reading the cases several times and guided authors with their valuable evaluations, comments, and criticism.

We are mostly thankful to a number of company executives who welcomed the idea of writing case studies about their experiences. We also express our appreciation to all interviewees who provided information to case authors and made it easier to present situations clearly.

Our special thanks go to the editorial advisory board for their help in distributing the call for cases to their networks. We appreciate the time and effort they invested in evaluating case proposals during the initial stages and in reviewing and commenting on draft cases.

Our appreciation is also due to Professor Teri Tompkins for writing the foreword. Her work has been deeply inspiring to Dr. Grace Khoury.

Dr. Grace Khoury would like to thank Birzeit University for reducing her teaching load during the spring semester of the academic year 2012/2013, which allowed her to communicate and network with a number of authors and reviewers in several countries for the purpose of publishing a high quality case book. She would also like to express her appreciation for her colleagues at the business administration and marketing department for participating as authors, reviewers, and as members of the editorial advisory board. Dr. Khoury would like to especially thank Mr. Kieron Mirchandani-Cooper, who is affiliated with International Citizen Service organization and volunteered to edit almost half of the cases in this book.

Grace C. Khoury
Birzeit University, Palestine

Maria C. Khoury
Independent Researcher, Palestine