I would like to thank family, friends and colleagues for their support during the long process of this project. Their advice, comfort and encouragement helped me to bring to completion what seemed at times a very distant and vague deliverable.

Particular thanks to my wife, Maria, without her support over the years this book would never have been completed.

I would also like to acknowledge all the editing assistants, supervisors and managers of IGI Global, a long chain of names and Christine Bufton is the last one and the first here for me to express my thanks; her patience and persuasion urged me on to complete the last mile of this book.

This work would not have been possible without access to the research material and the case studies that have been now for more than twelve years carried out in the Research Division of Unisof and later ALTEC - my particular thanks go to all the people that had been with us all these years.

In particular, I would like to thank Dimitris Tektonidis, Apostolos Vontas and Androklis Mavridis, good people and good colleagues for many years now. Androklis especially is co-creator of PACE and continues his work in intangible assets valuation for his (soon-to-get) PhD. Also, certain parts of work reported here regarding the service supply platform had been realised as part of a successful European project that I had been part of, namely the IST Agent Academy project coordinated by Professor Pericles Mitkas. The project, besides being a research success story, gave the opportunity for four new researchers to unfold their creativity, namely Ioannis Athanasiadis, Dionysis Kechagias, Andreas Symeonidis and Kyriakos Chatzidimitriou. Especially the latter two had been heavily involved in what we used to call the ALTEC test case. To both I owe my gratitude.
