I am grateful to many people for making this project possible. I would like to thank Dr. Richard Schwier, Dr. Gordon McCalla, and Dr. Jim Greer who have positively influenced my scholarly interdisciplinary ideas. I am also indebted to Dr. Martin Mulder for inspiring my research career. Special recognition goes to my friend and colleague Dr. Diego Zapata-Rivera for tremendously stimulating discussions and collaboration on early work on Bayesian Belief Network. My involvement with the International Centre for Governance and International Development at the University of Saskatchewan under the mentorship of Dr. Asit Sarkar helped in stretching my views on community technologies to new frontiers of Social Sciences and the Humanities especially within international development. Most of the ideas are presented in this book. I would also like to thank Dr. Piet Kommers for honestly undertaking the task of writing the foreword of the book.

Further, I would like to thank the two anonymous reviewers for taking their valuable time to review the book and provided me with honest and highly valuable feedback. Special thanks also go to IGI Global publishing team, whose contributions throughout the whole publication process. In particular, I am deeply indebted to Julia Mosemann who continuously provided support via e-mail and kept the project on schedule, but most importantly for her catalytic and facilitative role from the inception of the book to the finished product that you are now holding in your hands. Thanks to Jennifer Weston for helping with the enormous task of marketing the book, and to Jamie Snavely for editorial help. I also appreciate Nova Spivak of radarnetworks.com for giving me the permission to use the progress graph of versioning of the Web technologies in the book.

I was quite fortunate to be able to lecture on a few courses while writing this book. I am greatly indebted to Dr. Veronika Makarova, Dr. Richard Julian and Dr. Leonard Proctor for offering me the opportunities to lecture in their undergraduate programs. Special recognition goes to Dr. Beth Horsburgh, Dawn Sinclair, Donna
Mitchell and all of my colleagues in the Office of the Associate Vice President Research-Health (University of Saskatchewan)/Vice President Research and Innovation (Saskatoon Health Region).

I would like to thank my late father Daniel Motidyang Lo-Kuri Soma as well as Mama Helena Ropi and Mama Margret Kiden for being the cornerstone of my education. I am grateful to all my brothers and sisters for their love and support throughout the years. Special thanks to Alakai Joseph Sekwat, Roda Kade Daniel, Cecilia Muja Daniel, Dr. Stanley Mogga Josephson and James Wani-Kana for immeasurable support during my early years of college. Additionally, I would like to express my heartfelt gratitude to Mr. and Mrs Louis and Claudette Lavergne and their family; Anne Lavergne, Denis Lavergne and Thomas Lavergne for their constant support and encouragement. I am also grateful to my gorgeous girlfriend Michelle Lavergne not only for her unconditional love, patience and support, but also for editing the first draft of the book. And finally, thanks to those silent contributors, you know where you are to you know who you are.

Sincerely,

Ben K. Daniel
