Table of Contents

Detailed Table of Contents ............................................................................................................. vi

Foreword .............................................................................................................................................. xi

Preface ................................................................................................................................................. xii

Acknowledgments ............................................................................................................................. xxi

Section I

Opportunities and Challenges in E-Government and E-Learning

Chapter I
Differing Challenges and Different Achievements: The Case for a Separate Classification for Qualifications Undertaken by E-Learning / Eddie Blass, Andrew Ettinger, and Viki Holton ................................................................. 1

Chapter II
Social Implications of E-Mentoring: Development of an E-Mentoring Model / Veronica M. Godshalk ............................................................................................................................................ 15

Chapter III
Social Implications of Distance Education in Alaska / Bogdan Hoanca and Kenrick Mock ............. 28

Chapter IV
Games-Based E-Learning: Implications and Challenges for Higher Education and Training / Thomas Connolly and Mark Stansfield .......................................................................................................................... 42
Chapter V
Designing a CRM-Based E-Government Usability Services Framework: Integrating Internal and External Customers in Public Services / Chi-Chang Chang and Yi-Fen Chen .......................................................... 57

Chapter VI
Electronic Policing: A Framework for Crime Control and Citizen Services / Roongrasamee Boondao and Nitin Kumar Tripathi .......................................................... 78

Chapter VII
Benchmarking the Usability and Content Usefulness of Web Sites: Developing a Structured Evaluation Framework / Shahizan Hassan and Feng Li ......................... 94

Section II
Social Shaping, Construction, and Consequences of E-Business

Chapter VIII
The Influence of the Internet on Relationships Between Consumers and Vendors / Horst Treiblmair .......................................................... 115

Chapter IX
Social Implications of Managing Project Stakeholders / Petar Jovanovic, Marko Mihic, and Dejan Petrovic .......................................................... 130

Chapter X
B2C Failures: Toward an Innovation Theory Framework / Anil M. Pandya and Nikhilesh Dholakia .......................................................... 145

Chapter XI
An Empirical Investigation of the Role of Trust and Power in Shaping the Use of Electronic Markets / Raluca Bunduchi .......................................................... 159

Chapter XII
Social Aspects of Open Source Software: Motivation, Organization, and Economics / Spyridoula Lakka, Nikolas E. Lionis, and Dimitris Varoutas .......................................................... 173

Chapter XIII
Challenging Digital Inequalities: Barrier and Prospects / Norman Bonney, Olufemi Komolafe, and Elizabeth Tait .......................................................... 187