Authentic Learning Environments in Higher Education

Table of Contents

Foreword ........................................................................................................................................... vii

Preface ............................................................................................................................................ x

---

Section I

Guidelines for the Design of Quality Authentic Learning Environments

Chapter I. What is an Authentic Learning Environment? ....................... 1

Anthony Herrington, University of Wollongong, Australia

Jan Herrington, University of Wollongong, Australia

---

Section II

Authentic Learning Environments Across the Disciplines

Adult Education:

Chapter II. Authentic Graduate Education for Personal and Workplace Transformation ................................................................. 15

Marilyn Laiken, University of Toronto, Canada

Architecture:

Chapter III. The Music Room: Translating Curricula into Real-World Professional Experience .............................................................................. 34

Di Challis, Deakin University, Australia
Biology:
Chapter IV. An Authentic Online Learning Environment in University Introductory Biology .................................................................48
   Annette Koenders, Edith Cowan University, Australia

Business:
Chapter V. Peer Coaching and Reflective Practice in Authentic Business Contexts: A Strategy to Enhance Competency in Post-Graduate Business Students .............................................................61
   Richard Ladyshewsky, Curtin University of Technology, Australia
   John Ryan, Ryan Management Consulting, Australia

Economics:
Chapter VI. Creating an Authentic Learning Environment in Economics for MBA Students ............................................................76
   Greg Parry, Edith Cowan University, Australia
   Clive Reynoldson, Edith Cowan University, Australia

Evaluation:
Chapter VII. Using Characters in Online Simulated Environments to Guide Authentic Tasks ...........................................................................88
   Shirley Agostinho, University of Wollongong, Australia

Health:
Chapter VIII. Constructing a Clinical Experience in the Classroom ...........................................................................................................96
   Jennifer R. Jamison, Murdoch University, Australia

Information and Communication Technologies:
Chapter IX. Applying Adult Education Principles to an Undergraduate Subject .........................................................................................107
   Cate Jerram, University of Western Sydney, Australia

Instructional Design:
Chapter X. Using Related Cases to Support Authentic Project Activities ..........................................................................................120
   Sue Bennett, University of Wollongong, Australia
Literacy Education:
Chapter XI. Online Classroom Simulation: Using a Virtual Classroom to Support Pre-Service Teacher Thinking ......................... 135
  Brian Ferry, University of Wollongong, Australia
  Lisa Kervin, University of Wollongong, Australia
  Sarah Puglisi, University of Wollongong, Australia
  Brian Cambourne, University of Wollongong, Australia
  Jan Turbill, University of Wollongong, Australia
  David Jonassen, University of Missouri, USA
  John Hedberg, Macquarie University, Australia

Literature:
Chapter XII. Speaking Snake: Authentic Learning and the Study of Literature ................................................................. 162
  John Fitzsimmons, Central Queensland University, Australia

Management:
Chapter XIII. Using IT to Augment Authentic Learning Environments .................................................................................. 172
  Sandra Jones, RMIT University, Australia

Mathematics Education:
Chapter XIV. An Authentic Approach to Facilitating Transfer of Teachers’ Pedagogical Knowledge .............................. 182
  Anthony Herrington, University of Wollongong, Australia
  Jan Herrington, University of Wollongong, Australia
  Evan Glazer, Roanoke Valley Governor’s School, USA

Project Management:
Chapter XV. Applying Situated Learning Theory to the Creation of Learning Environments to Enhance Socialisation and Self-Regulation ................................................................. 194
  Catherine McLoughlin, Australian Catholic University, Australia
  Joe Luca, Edith Cowan University, Australia

Records Management:
Chapter XVI. Using Online Discussions to Provide an Authentic Learning Experience for Professional Recordkeepers ............. 214
  Karen Anderson, Edith Cowan University, Australia
Teacher Education:
Chapter XVII. Authentic Cases and Media Triggers for Supporting Problem-Based Learning in Teacher Education ........................................... 224
  Mike Keppell, The Hong Kong Institute of Education, Hong Kong

Section III
Enhancing Widespread Adoption of Authentic Learning Environments

Chapter XVIII. Reusable Resources and Authentic Learning Environments ........................................................................................................ 244
  Ron Oliver, Edith Cowan University, Australia

Chapter XIX. Authentic Learning at Work ........................................... 262
  Lynne Hunt, Edith Cowan University, Australia

Chapter XX. Professional Development for the Online Teacher: An Authentic Approach ........................................... 283
  Jan Herrington, University of Wollongong, Australia
  Ron Oliver, Edith Cowan University, Australia

Chapter XXI. Authentic Teaching and Learning Standards That Assure Quality Higher Education ........................................... 296
  Ron Oliver, Edith Cowan University, Australia
  Anthony Herrington, University of Wollongong, Australia
  Sue Stoney, Edith Cowan University, Australia
  Jim Millar, Edith Cowan University, Australia

About the Authors ..................................................................................... 309

Index ............................................................................................................ 318